DISORDERS IN EGYPT ARE SHORT-LIVED

Seven Native Policemen
Hurt and Fifty Rioters
Under Arrest

REPORT ALL QUIET
AT CLOSE OF DAY

CAIRO, Nov. 21 (P).—Fifty rioters were arrested and seven native policemen injured in short-lived disorders today on Cairo's "Day of Mourning."

Tram windows and street lamps were smashed and some shops damaged by several thousand hooligans and a few students. For three hours paving stones were tossed about freely, but order was restored to night and the rioters vanished.

NO GENERAL STRIKE
Students, who called the "Day of Mourning" for their comrades slain in last week's anti-British riots, failed, however, to effect a hoped-for general strike.

In the native quarter, some merchants draped their doors in mourning. Cairo's famed bazaar also was shut down.
A close check of hospitals disclosed not a single rioter casualty tonight. Shops and bazaars reopened and police reported all quiet. Native police in the Cairo disorders fired several times over the heads of ruffians intent on closing shops in side and back streets, and dispersed the mobs many times with stout clubs.

HOOIGANS DEMONSTRATE
Some merchants closed their shutters and windows in other shops were broken as the hooligans demonstrated against Britain and the stand of Premier Nessim. Several national police were stoned outside the headquarters of the Wafd-Nationalist Society.

TO DETERMINE AIR MAIL ROUTE

Conference at Ottawa to Study Three Possible Ways
Over Atlantic

OTTAWA, Nov. 21 (P).—Conferences designed to determine the best route for a trans-Atlantic air mail and freight service between Canada and Ireland will start here tomorrow between an inter-departmental committee of Canada experts and eleven aviation and postal officials from the United Kingdom, Northern Ireland and Newfoundland.

Sir Donald Banks, director-general of the British Postoffice and head of the visiting delegation, disclosed that the British Government hoped eventually to establish an air mail service to carry letters for three cents apiece.

HAVE THREE CHOICES

Delegates will have three choices of routes. They may decide to send airplanes across the roof of the world—over sub-Arctic and Arctic Canada, Greenland, Iceland, the Faroe Islands and Northern Ireland. This route has been surveyed in part.

They may choose a southerly route from Ireland to Bermuda and from there to Nova Scotia or New Brunswick. Sir Donald said in Montreal that choice of the Bermuda route would not necessitate New York landings, as the great circle distances between the islands and New York and the Maritimes are practically the same.

The third choice might be a direct jump from Ireland to Newfoundland and Canada.

GIVE FURLOUGHS TO MANY TROOPS

Mussolini Orders 100,000 Soldiers
Home in Move to Oppose
Economic Sanctions

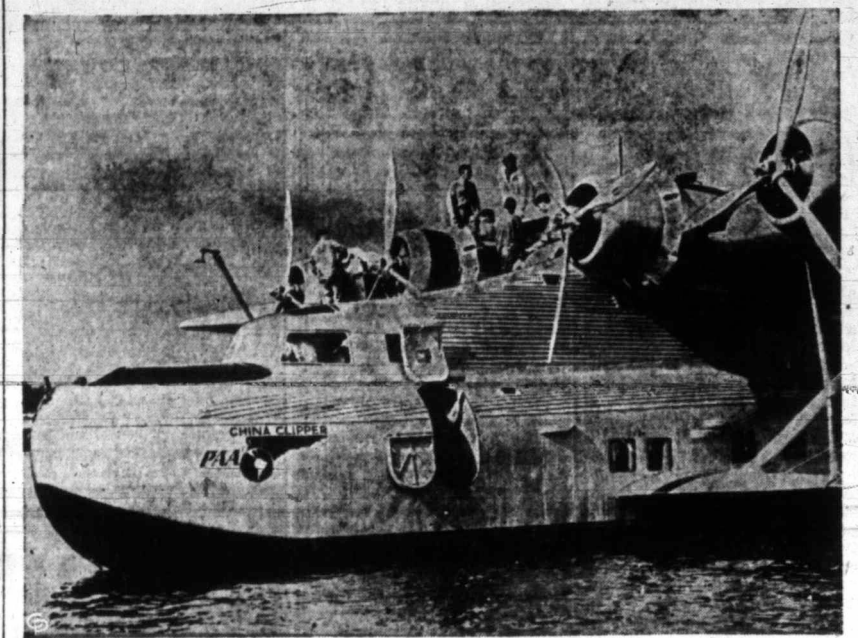

ROME, Nov. 21 (P).—Premier Mussolini, in a new move to oppose economic sanctions against Italy, ordered three-month furloughs to-night for about 100,000 of Italy's 1,000,000 home troops.

The temporary reduction, it was stated officially, has no international significance. The Government said the action was due to increasing farm and industrial production, because of the economic stale of Italy, and the desire to send men home to the families that need them.

Another Earthquake Gives Helena Residents New Alarm

HELENA, Mont., Nov. 21 (P).—Helena residents rushed into the streets tonight after an earthquake described as "strong" by the Weather Bureau shook the city at 8:58 o'clock. There was no report of damage or injury.

The shock occurred as the city was enjoying comparative calm after it had recorded 991 tremors since October 12. The earth had remained relatively quiet for the past few days. Tonight's earthquake was marked by a bouncing motion. Its duration was five seconds.

DUNDEE ISLAND, Weddell Sea, Antarctica, Nov. 21.—Another secret has been wrested from Antarctica. Although Herbert Hollick-Kenyon and I had to turn back our plane after covering almost a third of the distance across Antarctica to the Ross Sea, we discovered the great mountain chain of which Graham Land is a part, rises again beyond Stefansson Strait on what is probably one great Antarctic continent.

ALTITUDE MARK OFFICIALLY SET

Stratosphere Balloon Ascended
72,395 Feet on Armistice Day—
Certificate Is Issued

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (P).—A stratosphere height record of slightly less than fourteen miles was credited officially today to Captains Albert W. Stevens and Orvil A. Anderson for their Armistice Day flight.

The National Aeronautics Association certified the mark of 72,395 feet above sea level attained by the huge balloon of the National Geographic Society-Army Air Corps expedition.

This figure exceeded by 11,158 feet the former official record set November 20, 1933, by Lieutenant-Commander T. G. W. Settle and Major Chester Fordney, and also broke the unofficial record of 72,200 feet set by three Russian balloonists, January 3, 1934.

HON. CHARLES MURPHY IN OTTAWA HOSPITAL

Life of Cabinet Hangs in Balance Through Scheme's Postponement

REFORMS PROBLEM FOR CHINESE GOV'T

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press)

TOKIO, Nov. 22.—Sources close to the Government said Japanese militarists and opposing civilian leaders faced a showdown today over the North China situation with the life of the Cabinet possibly in the balance.

The issue was expected to be debated at a Cabinet session with Koki Hirota, Foreign Minister, leading the civilian group, and General Yoshitoki Kawashima, Minister of War, representing the militarists.

FAVORS COMPROMISE

Hirota, informed circles said, favors a compromise on the North China issue which would allow the Chinese National Government to retain a considerable degree of authority in the five northern provinces. This plan was recommended by Akira Ariyoshi, Ambassador to China, who consulted with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, Chinese.

TRY AGAIN TO KILL PREMIER

Attempt Made to Derail
Train Carrying Wang
Ching Wei

SHANGHAI, Nov. 21 (P).—The political atmosphere in Shanghai, disturbed by the North China crisis, became more turbulent today with reports from authoritative Japanese sources that another attempt had been made on the life of Premier Wang Ching Wei.

The Premier, who was wounded by an assassin on November 1 in Nanking, arrived suddenly yesterday from the capital. Informed persons said he was closely guarded in a sanitarium here because of an attempt to derail his train at Anting, sixteen miles from Shanghai.

MAN WOUNDED

The asserted plot was frustrated by police, the reports said, who came upon several persons trying to move a section of rail. The police were said to have fired, wounding one man. The reports were not immediately confirmed.

The reason for the Premier's hurried trip to Shanghai was not disclosed, and there was speculation that he would make another effort to resign, bringing about a political crisis in the midst of the tension over the autonomy move in North China.

SNOW REPORTED IN HALF-DOZEN STATES

ST. PAUL, Nov. 21 (P).—Snow in a half-dozen states, accompanied by biting temperatures, brought wintry conditions to a wide Midwest area today. North Dakota had the lowest temperature, 12 below zero, at Minto, and the most snow—enough in some areas to make roads impassable.

Former Mayor Will Seek Election to Vancouver Council

VANCOUVER, Nov. 21 (P).—Louis D. Taylor, who has eleven years of service as mayor of Vancouver behind him, came back in the civic political picture tonight with the announcement he would be an aldermanic candidate in Ward Five next month. Last December he was defeated by Mayor G. G. McGeer, who rolled up a 25,000 majority.

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMIES
AT MAKALE, Nov. 21 (CP-Havas).

Six thousand Ethiopians who attacked Italy's 15th Battalion of native troops were decisively defeated in a narrow pass near Abato, twenty-five miles northwest of Makale, it was reported tonight.

The engagement, which lasted several hours, was going against the Italians until they were joined by reinforcements, who swung the fight in their favor, couriers informed the high command here.

TO CUT OFF LINES

The Ethiopians were part of Ras Seyoum's tribal army of 30,000, centered in the Tembien Mountains between Makale and the Takka River, officers said. They were pushing through the foothills in a drive to cut off Italian communication lines with Addis when the 15th Battalion encountered them.

The Italians suffered only slight losses, the couriers asserted. The extent of the Ethiopian casualties was unknown, since the tribesmen succeeded in carrying off their dead and wounded in their retreat westward into higher ground.

The Ethiopians withdrew to Ambra Salama, a natural fortress, where Ras Seyoum's main army is believed centered. Ambra Salama is

GIVES UNUSUAL WEDDING PARTY

Ald. Adam Host to Twenty
Pioneer Married Couples
At Nanaimo

NANAIMO, Nov. 21.—Alderman James Adam, of Victoria, was host at a golden wedding party tonight, which was participated in by twenty couples, all Nanaimo residents, and all having been married here fifty years ago or more.

Mr. Adam is a native son of Nanaimo, and has always kept in touch with pioneer residents here. Some time ago he issued an invitation to all in the district who had been married for fifty years to gather at a banquet at the Malaspina Hotel tonight as his guests.

All invitations were accepted, and following two hours at the banqueting table, the party adjourned to the Capitol Theatre, where they were the guests of the management. During the banquet, telegrams of congratulations were read from Premier Pattullo, Hon. G. S. Pearson and Mayor David Leeming of Victoria. Mrs. W. S. Drysdale was soloist of the evening, her popular number being "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

THE GUESTS

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. R. Adam, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Beck, Mr. and Mrs. John Buck, Mr. and Mrs. W. Challiner, Mr. and Mrs. Cook, Mr. and Mrs. George Dawkin, Mr. and Mrs. John Dickinson, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Frater, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Haines, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Hickman, Mr. and Mrs. Dave John, Mr. and Mrs. William Lobley, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Manfold, Mr. and Mrs. L. Manson, Mr. and Mrs. T. INTERIOR TOWN HAS BAD FIRE

Blasting of Bank Halts
Spread of Flames After Block Razed

GREENWOOD, B.C., Nov. 21 (P).

A charred heap of ruins was all that remained tonight of an entire business block, razed by an early morning fire which threatened the remainder of the business section of this mining community until dynamite was used to bring it under control.

Damage was estimated at $60,000. Starting in the Imperial Garage on the north side of Copper Street, the flames raced through the block destroying an office building, a cafe, theatre, undertaking parlor and livery stable before leaping across the street to the Government liquor store.

Officials authorized dynamiting of the three-story frame building housing the Canadian Bank of Commerce which action was credited with halting the progress of the fire until fire fighters brought it under control.

A call for assistance to Grand Forks brought fire fighting equipment and six cars of fire fighters twenty-eight miles over snow-covered roads.

Temporary banking offices were opened today in the Pacific Hotel. Origin of the fire has not been determined.

Consolidation Plans In Peace River Met By Grim Resistance

Ratepayers of Three Districts Will Keep Children
From School Until Satisfactory Explanation
Received From Government—Object to Director

BALDONNEL, B.C., Nov. 21 (P).—Consolidation of school districts in the Peace River block of British Columbia, an economy move by the Provincial Government, today brought a protest from ratepayers in the three districts affected and a threat to keep their children at home unless a satisfactory explanation was given by the Government.

Ratepayers of Baldonnel, Taylor and Peaceview districts voted to notify Premier T. D. Pattullo and the Provincial Minister of Education that they would stop sending their children to school and keep them at home until their request was granted. They also demanded removal of Dr. Plenderleith who was appointed director when the three school areas were consolidated for taxation purposes.

WILL MAKE ADJUSTMENTS
(At Vancouver Nov. 20) George M. Weir, Minister of Education, said his representations had been received from the protesting areas, but that the Government would examine them carefully and make any necessary adjustments.

"We have had these complaints before, but they have always been ironed out," the minister added.

The ratepayers also decided they

ON HUNT FOR LOST FLYERS

Beacons Seen on Deserted Island—Planes Seek Kingsford-Smith

SINGAPORE, Nov. 22 (P).—Hope that Air-Commander Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith might be found alive were revived here today when the Ss. Pasha wireless that light beacons had been seen on a deserted island off the coast of Siam.

A brief message from the ship said the signals had been seen on the island of Sayer.

WINDS PREVENT LANDING

Efforts had been made to send a landing party to the island, but heavy winds prevented the boat from approaching nearer than one and a half miles from shore.

Air-Commander Sydney Smith, commander-in-chief of the Royal Air Force here, ordered a plane to take off from the Quantas base immediately to search the island.

MISSING TWO WEEKS

Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith and his co-pilot, Tom Pethybridge, have been missing since November 8 on a flight from England to Australia. Sayer Island, a tiny fragment of land thirty miles off the coast of Siam, is approximately 600 miles northwest of Singapore and on the route which the flyers were following.

They took off from Allahabad, India, en route to Singapore.

Brazilian Gov't Honors Aviatrix

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 21 (CP-Havas).—The Brazilian Government today conferred the officer's grade of the Order of Cruzeiro O Sol on Miss Jean Batien, New Zealand flyer who recently completed a hop from England to South America.

Miss Batten established a new record for the flight and also for the South Atlantic crossing from Dakar to Port Natal.

STRIKE IS SETTLED

WINNIPEG, Nov. 21 (P).—A three-day strike of more than 150 bakers and wagon drivers was settled amicably here today. Terms of settlement were not revealed. Fifteen bakers were tied up during the bakery dispute.

The red glow from the volcano could be seen from all parts of this island, but Hilo residents, instead of being afraid, were interested in the first volcanic outbreak since Kilauea erupted in October, 1934.

RUSH TO PEAK
It was not immediately determined whether there was a chance lava would flow toward Hilo, this depending on the nature of the outbreak. Scientists rushed to the peak to determine whether the eruption was from the crater at the summit, and also on which side of the peak the outbreak occurred.

The eruption was first reported at Waialeale, on the windward side of the island, by residents who saw the glow. There was no accompanying noise, as is often the case in eruptions.

It was the first eruption of Mauna Loa since December, 1933. The point of eruption was difficult of access, and could be reached only after a laborious hike.

A tidal wave, preceded by an earthquake, damaged scenic Hilo's waterfront today.

BY-ELECTIONS EXPECTED SOON

Two Ministers to Be Seated
Before Parliament Meets
In January

OTTAWA, Nov. 21 (P).—One question on which the Government will have to take early action is that of finding seats for two of the ministers who were candidates in the general election. Finance Minister Charles Dunning and Hon. James G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture.

It is assumed both ministers will have been seated before the new Administration meets Parliament, and Premier King has given an intimation that the session would assemble some time in January. In that event there remains at the most only about two months in which to hold the necessary by-elections.

MAY SURRENDER SEAT

It had been rumored that Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture in the last Liberal Administration, would make way for Mr. Gardiner in Melville.

Hon. E. Lapointe, acting prime minister, was questioned on the report that the new Government would "scrap" the election machinery set up by the last administration through legislation passed at the last session of Parliament. The acting prime minister said there had been no time to canvass the situation but it seemed likely there would be amending legislation at the first session of the new Parliament. The new set-up had not worked out as satisfactorily as had been hoped and it had proved too costly.

Australian Missionary Held for Year by Communists in Kweichow Province

CHANGTEH, Hunan Province, China, Nov. 21 (P).—Chinese officials announced today that an Australian missionary of the China Inland Mission, Rev. A. Hayman, has been released by Communists after a year in captivity.

Rev. Arnolds Hayman and R. A. Boshardt, a Swiss missionary, were captured by Reds in Kweichow Province in October, 1934, and at one time were reported to have been killed.

Envoys sent to seek their release were seized last January and clothing and food were taken. There was no indication of the fate of the Swiss.

CONTROVERSY DISCUSSED AT RIOT INQUIRY

Messages from Provincial and Federal Governments Read at Probe

HON. J. G. GARDINER
EXPLAINS DETAILS

REGINA, Nov. 21 (P).—Telegraph messages exchanged between Hon. J. G. Gardiner and Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett in a constitutional controversy just before the Regina Dominion Day riot were read into the records of the Royal Commission investigating the riot when Mr. Gardiner, now Dominion Minister of Agriculture, testified today.

At the time Mr. Gardiner was the Saskatchewan Premier and Mr. Bennett was head of the Dominion Government.

FEDERAL CONTENTION

The Federal contention, as seen by Mr. Gardiner, was that the protesters were trespassers on railway property, and that the province should co-operate in halting the march to Regina. The Federal solution was to remove the men to a camp in the Lumsden Valley.

Tenaciously, Mr. Gardiner's account showed, the Provincial Government stuck to the contention that the railways had brought the men to Regina and were responsible for moving them.

Finally, on June 27 a telegram from Mr. Bennett suggested to Mr. Gardiner a change of front. The next telegram from Mr. Bennett said: "We have not the slightest intention of changing our position."

He called on the Provincial Government to assist in maintaining "the fabric of our society and the institutions of our country against the illegal threats of Communists and associates."

IMPORTED PROBLEM

Back went Mr. Gardiner's reply repeating the willingness of the Provincial Government to guard peace and order, adding: "This province had no problem till you imported one."

He told the commission no evidence had been presented to the Provincial Government indicating Communist activities in connection with the trek.

The morning of June 28, said Mr. Gardiner, he demanded from Col. S. T. Wood, assistant-commissioner of the R.C.M.P., an account of instructions under which certain arrests the previous night were made. Col. Wood produced a telegram from Commissioner Sir J. H. MacBrien, O.T.A., commissioner of the R.C.M.P., dated the previous day.

It said: "The Government is taking action under the Relief Measures Act declaring national emergency to maintain peace, order and good government. This will protect you against such actions and seizures you feel necessary to take. (Signed) J. H. MacBrien."

HAD NO EXCUSE

Of this incident, Mr. Gardiner said: "We felt the Federal Government had no excuse for acting on the highways."

Frank J. G. Cunningham, strikers' counsel, in cross-examination, asked: "Would your Government have stopped the men?"

"If we had control of the police the circumstances would have been different," Mr. Gardiner replied.

Chief Justice J. T. Brown, chairman of the commission, stated "I think that is quite apparent."

CONSOLIDATION PLANS RESISTED

would refuse to turn over their books, records and accounts to Dr. Plenderleith until such time as the British Columbia Department of Education granted their request.

THE OTHER SIDE

Dr. Plenderleith's removal was asked for on the grounds he had failed in his duties as a school inspector and had acted in a high-handed manner.

An annual saving of $2,800 and increase of services was claimed by Dr. Plenderleith under the consolidation plan. He also said increases had been made in teachers' salaries and medical care given children, claims which were substantiated by Dr. Weir.

Novel Order Founded Here By Clubmen

A new organization has sprung into being here. It is the Royal and Ancient Order of Double-Headed. It has nothing to do with baseball, and to join its ranks you must be a married member of the Victoria Rotary Club.

Rotarians who are the fathers of twins, or who are themselves twin brothers, are eligible for membership.

During the Rotary Club meeting at the Empress Hotel yesterday, members of the order dined in state at a table decorated with a large stork bearing twin baby dolls in its beak.

Officers of the order are Frank I. Doherty, keeper of the safety pins; B. R. Cieri, keeper of the stork; and Arthur Dawe, director. All these Rotarians are fathers of twins.

Mr. Dawe qualified for his position last week.

Other members who are twin brothers include Frank M. Shandley, Rev. Dr. W. J. Sippell, Bert Murphy and George Plowman.

JAPAN'S MILITARISTS TO FACE SHOWDOWN

National Government leader, in Nanking, yesterday.

The proposed declaration of autonomy by the five provinces has been "postponed for the time being" in response to the urgent instructions of Chiang Kai-Shek, the Rengo (Japanese) News Agency reported from Tientsin.

CONFERENCE OF LEADERS

This decision, the agency continued, was "reached at a conference of northern leaders convened in Tientsin by General Sung Cheh Yuan (commander of the Peiping-Tientsin garrison), who arrived hurriedly from Peiping."

The newspaper Asahi said that when Ambassador Araiyo submitted his compromise plan to Tokio, he said: "This is likely to be my last service to the emperor," indicating he would resign if militarists have their way. Araiyo has been accused by militarists of being too soft in dealing with the Chinese.

PLAYS STRONG HAND

LONDON, Nov. 21 (P).—Informed sources hinted tonight that Great Britain has played a strong diplomatic hand both in Tokio and Nanking to check the move for an autonomous North China.

Just what steps had been taken was not officially clarified, but there were indications that British influence had been used both to curb the activities of Major-General Kenji Dohara, Japanese "Lawrence of Manchukuo," and to stiffen the resistance of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, military overlord of the Chinese Republic.

PROBLEM TRANSFERRED

SHANGHAI, Nov. 21 (P).—Japanese officers turned over to the Chinese National Government today the problem of reforms in North China, but fear was expressed in official quarters that the independence movement may yet go through.

The Japanese Foreign Office caused a hitch in the Northern autonomy movement, a high Nanking official here said, for fear that the situation would prejudice Japan's demands for tonnage parity with Great Britain and the United States in the forthcoming London Naval Conference.

Chinese circles were alarmed, however, over the possibility that Japan's army would act independently of Tokio.

SOONER OR LATER

(Copyright, 1935, by Havas News Agency)
PEIPING, Nov. 21.—North China will have an autonomous government sooner or later despite the present halt in Tokio's plans, a Japanese spokesman here told Havas tonight.

"We know of no reverse in the situation in North China," the spokesman said. "We understand only that the people of North China are pro-Japanese and Nanking is anti-Japanese."

"Unless there is conciliation between the two, an independent government in North China will be necessary. If Nanking changes its policy toward Japan and recognizes the ambitions of the people of North China, things will be easy."

ANTI-RED DEFENCE

"There still would be the question, however," he added, "of anti-Red defence, of Sino-Russian relations. Besides that, if Nanking persisted in draining silver from the North, it would mean the death of the Northern provinces."

"Japan wants only to protect herself against any threat and to protect Manchukuo. She wants also to enforce respect for her interests in North China, which are as great as those of Nanking."

STOLE FIREARMS FROM BARRACKS

Attorney Says Arrest Upset Plot For Machine-Gun Robbery In Canada

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 21 (P).—London police upset a plot for Canada's first machine gun robbery, Acting Crown Attorney Max Lerner said in police court today, when Victor Hackett, twenty-three, formerly of Windsor, and Jack Henson, twenty-one, of London, held for three robberies in which arms were taken, pleaded guilty to amended charges. They were remanded for sentence.

Hackett admitted having in his possession when arrested stolen merchandise valued at $1,350, including firearms and machine guns taken from Middlesex Light Infantry barracks and an optical store.

LANDS OF POLE FORM CONTINENT

we could not see because of the clouds beneath us, the feel of the machine in the air suggested that we were above a plateau. Definite details will not be known until we have had time to check our observations, but we were probably at our farthest south between latitudes 71 and 72 and longitudes 65 and 66 west.

On our course, which trended southwestward, the clouds ranged for probably seventy miles ahead and even there we could see a rolling cloud mass, apparently at a higher level and which indicated another range, possibly higher than the one over which we flew.

FOOLHARDY TO CONTINUE

It would have been foolhardy and useless to continue on over the clouds, and it became obvious soon after we turned that we were in a terrific wind. It is, of course, impossible to check the drift of a plane in the clouds, but as soon as we could see the coast of the Weddell Sea and Cape Eielson it was apparent that a strong southwest wind had, while we were climbing, carried us much to the eastward. We came back more or less parallel to our outward course and landed after ten and a half hours' flying.

EMPEROR RETURNS

ADDIS ABABA, Nov. 21 (P).—Emperor Haile Selassie returned unexpectedly from his first inspection at the battle front today. An official communique said his airplane may have been chased by two Italian planes.

While Haile Selassie was inspecting the southern and eastern front, the Government said, two Italian tanks were captured and their twelve Italian occupants immediately beheaded by the Ethiopians.

"I have kept my word by going to the front among my soldiers," Haile Selassie said.

"I was most gratified at seeing for myself the loyal devotion being shown by my troops for their fatherland, and their magnificent bravery. I believe, that with the help of God, our righteous cause will prevail."

A DIFFERENT VERSION

The Government also claimed that a recent Italian bombardment of an Ethiopian encampment on the northern front left thirty dead and fifty wounded, instead of the 2,000 fatalities claimed by the Italians.

Haile Selassie declared himself "extremely satisfied" after inspecting arrangements at Dire Dawa to guard the railroad from Addis Ababa to Djibouti. Dire Dawa is 230 miles to the east, behind the southern front.

HAWAIIANS UNAFRAID OF ACTIVE VOLCANO

No witness to the wave phenomenon was found, but boats and debris were piled well above the water line, confirming its visit.

Waves lifted huge boulders from the beach and rolled them irishore to damage a section of wharf railroad track. Two small yachts anchored in the bay were wrecked. A power boat was damaged.

Spray shot twenty-five feet into the air as heavy breakers pounded Kamehameha Avenue, the main street and waterfront thoroughfare.

KILAUEA QUIESCENT

Kilauea Volcano, Hawaii's number one tourist attraction a few miles out of Hilo, remained quiescent.

Earthquakes are commonplace here, especially about Kilauea. There they often herald an outbreak of volcanic activity.

The phenomena left no unrest among the populace. The waves receded before the property damage was discovered.

Moderate earth shocks visited the area at 1:20 a.m. (6:50 a.m. E.S.T.). Apparently they originated in the mountains, fifteen to thirty miles away, Dr. T. A. Jaggar, volcanologist, reported. They were felt in Honolulu, more than 200 miles to the northwest. No casualties were reported.

Company Points Out Danger in Reduction Of Gasoline Tariff

Imperial Oil Brief Contends Increased Competition Would Eventually Cause Higher Retail Prices—Has Kept Pledge to Government

OTTAWA, Nov. 21 (P).—Reduction in the duty on gasoline would result in increased competition in Canada, an increase in the number of service stations, higher costs of distribution for the competing companies and eventually higher retail prices for gasoline, it was contended in a brief submitted to the Tariff Board today by the Imperial Oil Company.

The board's hearing on the gasoline tariff today appeared likely to extend into next week. Early in December it will have a hearing on the cotton and silk tariffs.

The Imperial Oil Company, represented by H. C. F. Mockridge, claimed it had kept its pledge to the Dominion Government not to increase prices by reason of the duties imposed in 1930. Mr. Mockridge argued that Canada had been saved from a disturbed condition in the oil industry such as now prevailed in the United States by the tariff.

He also claimed that the United States, the largest oil producing country in the world, needed a tariff equivalent to 3 cents per imperial gallon on gasoline to protect it against imports from Europe, and that the present Canadian tariff of 2 1/2 cents was not sufficient to keep out imports of European gasoline.

With refineries in Canada and sources of supply for crude oil in foreign countries under their control Canadian oil companies were able to give a secure service to the Canadian people. If the duty were removed the refineries might move to close, and in the event of a crisis in the oil industry in the United States, involving restriction of export, Canada would have no secure source of supply.

Exploration work
Up to 1920 the company had spent more than $6,000,000 on exploration work in Western Canada. Since then their subsidiaries had drilled a number of wells in the Turner Valley in Alberta, "but the company does not regard this area as an old field, but rather as a wet gas field of considerable potential worth, provided the rock pressures are conserved by suitable operating methods. The company is strongly in favor of proper conservation of the resources of the valley, consistent with practical operation."

Imperial Oil operated refineries at Vancouver, Port Norman, N.W.T., Calgary, Coultas, Alta; Regina, Saskatchewan, Ont.; Montreal and Halifax, with present crude oil capacity of 96,550 barrels daily.

The brief analyzed earnings of the company since the present tariff of 2 1/2 cents per gallon was imposed, to show that in 1930 on capital investment of $11,802,260, the earnings represented 6.5 per cent on invested capital, and last year this had declined to 2.92 per cent on invested capital of $103,456,712. The profit per imperial gallon declined from nearly 8-10ths of a cent on net earnings of $7,215,291 in 1930 to 4-10ths of a cent on net earnings of $3,023,400 in 1934.

SPREADS ARE REDUCED
Since the duty had been in effect the spreads between the raw materials costs relating to gasoline at Canadian refineries, and the tank wagon and consumer prices had been substantially reduced.

By regulating imports the duty retarded extravagant multiplication of retail outlets which ultimately would result in higher charges to the consumer.

It had also made possible larger volume of manufacture, resulting in lower refining costs, the brief said. Labor had benefited because the duty on gasoline prevented dumping of surpluses from foreign markets, which would have created unemployment, and the duty had proved the only obstacle to a complete democratization of the major gasoline markets in Canada, and to an invasion by the chaotic conditions which prevailed in the United States during the last four years.

Accomplishment of Victoria Publicity Bureau Are Related

George I. Warren, Commissioner, Tells Members
Of Rotary Club About Vast Amount of Work
Done to Attract Visitors to City

In a short but informative address, George I. Warren, commissioner of the Victoria Island Publicity Bureau, explained to members of the Rotary Club at the Empress Hotel yesterday afternoon "Why and How Victoria Harbours Her Tourist Crop."

In 1933, tourist traffic to Canada showed a decrease of 22 per cent. British Columbia traffic decreased 38.5 per cent, but Victoria's figures were only 1-2 of 1 per cent lower than the previous year, Mr. Warren declared.

Up to November 1 this year, traf-

Figures showed that 8,000,000 automobile owners in the United States traveled this year, spending an average of $7 per day, which totaled $56,000,000. Over $18,000,000 was spent by 328 organizations in the United States to advertise attractions of various localities, he said.

KEEN COMPETITION
"Each year the Publicity Bureau is finding keener competition and rising costs of publicizing attractions. Its finances are controlled by five members of the City Council, headed by Mayor David Leeming, and its destiny is in the hands of nine directors, three being members of the council," Mr. Warren told clubmen.

Mr. Warren explained the work of Frank Giolma, publicity writer, who had sent 252 articles on Island features to 291 newspapers and magazines all over the world. A large number of publications containing some of these articles and bureau photographs were shown.

Questionnaires sent out to 1,227 visiting motorists in 1933 showed that they spent $32,774 around Victoria and had invested $47,500 on the Island. Each automobile averaged three passengers and their average stay was six days. In addition to the motorists, there were a large number of persons who traveled by steamer, train and bus.

Last year 1,437 questionnaires showed that those filling them in had spent $138,390 on the Island, an average of $96.28 per automobile. The average stay was five and one-half days. Passengers in each automobile spent $42.61 in retail stores of the city.

DENIES RIVALRY
"I refute the suggestion that the Publicity Bureau and the Tourist Trade Development Association are not working together for the common good of Victoria," declared Mr. Warren. "There is no rivalry, because the function of one organization is to bring tourists here and that of the other is to provide attractions so that their sojourn here will be lengthened. T. H. Edick, general secretary of the T.T.D.A., is a first-class organizer and a premier showman."

Of 1,597 visiting motorists questioned last year, 924 stayed at hotels and 673 in automobile camps. Repeat visits were being made by 279. Road conditions were complained of by 341, and ferry rates by fifty-eight, Mr. Warren said. He distributed a number of questionnaires which had been filled in by visitors. Many showed that small parties had spent as much as $1,500 on the Island.

PRINTERS BENEFIT
Relating that the Publicity Bureau had been accused of spending too much money outside Victoria, Mr. Warren declared that less than $5,000 of the $22,000 expended this year left the city. Local printers received $4,600 for folders and maps. The speaker told how only $870 had been spent on travel by the bureau. Contact men were constantly scouring highways of the Pacific Northwest to contact hotels, automobile camps and chambers of commerce with literature and maps showing the way to Vancouver Island by many routes. Twenty-two billboards, bearing the route to the Island, were maintained in California and Oregon, he said.

Mr. Warren described work of the Evergreen Playground Association, of which Victoria, Seattle, Bellingham, Tacoma and Portland were members. These cities were banded together to jointly advertise attractions of the Pacific Northwest, he stated.

FILMS SHOWN
The Canadian Travel Bureau at Ottawa received 27,000 inquiries from prospective tourists, Mr. Warren related. These inquiries have been sent to the Victoria Publicity Bureau and to each one answered with full information on Island attractions and business facilities. Also through the Ottawa bureau seven reels of motion pictures, featuring Victoria and Vancouver Island, were now being exhibited all over the world. The only cost to the Victoria bureau was the cameraman's expenses for a few days, he asserted.

"I am proud of the work of the Publicity Bureau," Mr. Warren concluded. Thanking Mr. Warren, Herbert J. Pendray, president of the Rotary Club, declared that the account had opened his eyes to the vast amount of useful work accomplished by the Publicity Bureau.

CONFIRM B.C. APPOINTMENTS

Salary Increases Granted by Province to Some Junior Employees

Small salary increases trickled through Provincial Government orders yesterday, mostly in respect to junior employees added in a temporary capacity in the last few years and now ratified in permanent positions.

Salary for the position of Superintendent of Welfare was ratified at $3,600 per annum, without change from current estimates, but subject to regular deductions in force in the service since 1931.

Two temporary stenographers in the Department of Agriculture, and an index clerk in the archives had these positions confirmed. A temporary official in the Victoria Branch of the Employment Service of Canada was granted an increase in salary.

APPOINTMENTS RATIFIED
The appointment of James H. Creighton to succeed Dr. G. F. Davidson in the Welfare Branch, and promotion of Miss Laura Holland and Miss Isobel Harvey in the Neglected Children's Division, all previously announced, were confirmed.

The resignation of Police Magistrate J. Hamilton Stubbs, of Kaslo, was accepted. William J. Clement, of Kelowna, was created a justice of the peace. More election commissioners were added in Vancouver-Burrard, and some in Nelson-Creston ridings.

A petition by Nelson to hold its election for commissioners annually, instead of once every two years, was granted.

COURT ASKED FOR GUIDANCE IN WILL CASE

Affairs of Rattenbury Estate
Placed Before Mr. Justice
Robertson

ROYAL TRUST CO.
SEEKS INSTRUCTIONS

Argument in Supreme Court, relative to the right of the Royal Trust Company to sell the former Rattenbury residence on Beach Drive, Oak Bay, lasted throughout the greater part of yesterday forenoon, and Mr. Justice H. B. Robertson reserved his judgment.

The matter came up on a chambers application by H. A. Maclean, K.C., acting for the Royal Trust, seeking directions as to whether any right existed for carrying out the sale under the will of the late F. M. Rattenbury and Mrs. Rattenbury. Mr. Maclean claimed the trust company was fully within its rights to carry out the contemplated sale. There were present an array of counsel, representing various interests connected with the estate. H. G. S. Heisterman appeared as counsel for the estate of the late Mrs. Rattenbury, while Cleve G. White appeared for the two infants who were the beneficiaries under the will of Mrs. Rattenbury, and W. H. Langley represented Mrs. Burton, daughter of Mr. Rattenbury by a former marriage.

FACTS OF CASE
Outlining the situation, Mr. Maclean alluded to the fact that Mr. Rattenbury died March 28, 1935. Mrs. Rattenbury died June 5, 1935. The will of the former was probated and sealed here on July 10 and Mrs. Rattenbury's will was probated here July 23.

Under the will of Mr. Rattenbury the Royal Trust Company was appointed the executor with power to sell and convert into cash, assets of the estate. The company was authorized to pay certain sums to the wife, while the residue was to be held for the benefit of his son by the second wife and a son of Mrs. Rattenbury by a former marriage. The right of the trust company, Mr. Maclean argued, was established under both wills.

In 1929 there had been a conveyance of the property in Victoria from Mr. Rattenbury to his wife with a consideration of $3,000 paid by the latter. On November 10, 1929, Mrs. Rattenbury entered into an arrangement with the St. George and the Dragon Hotel Company for a lease for ninety-nine years, with the option of purchase for $85,000. The document was signed by Mr. Rattenbury, Mrs. Rattenbury and the trust company, acting for the vendors. The property, said Mr. Maclean, was conveyed to the trust company then to facilitate the carrying out of the agreement.

TO SHARE RENTALS
The annual income was to be divided between Mr. and Mrs. Rattenbury on an equal division. Provision had been made for the Royal Trust Company, paying proceeds from the sale for the benefit of the two children named in Mrs. Rattenbury's will as the beneficiaries.

The deal, for the sale to the hotel company, did not go through and the agreement was rescinded and, on May 13, 1931, surrender of the lease took place. Then, it was explained, the Royal Trust Company, under its powers, proceeded to sell the property to Ian Simpson for $17,000. The trust company was met by objections, and it was sought to have a decision reached in the matter, said Mr. Maclean.

Mr. Maclean held that the Royal Trust was within its powers in doing as it did, and took exception to the caveat served at the instance of Mr. Langley. He argued that Mrs. Burton could not have any interest in the proceedings. The company had the right to sell under the will of Mr. Rattenbury and also of Mrs. Rattenbury. The wills had been probated here. As trustee, the company held the right to proceed as it had done.

MAY ATTACH WILL
Mr. Langley set out that Mrs. Burton, daughter of Mr. Rattenbury, as well as her brother, both of them children by a first marriage, were within their rights in proceeding under the Family Maintenance Act to attach the will of the late Mr. Rattenbury. Mrs. Burton, he said, had joined her brother in the proceedings taken in Vancouver.

He pointed out that at the time of the disposal of the property, probate of the will had not been made. When the sale for $17,500 was made, Mr. Langley argued that the trust company must either have sold as executor of the estate or as a trustee. If the latter, there must have been power to sell granted. If it were sold without waiting for the probate it belonged to the estate of Mr. Rattenbury, and his client, as a daughter, had a right to put forward a claim upon the estate. If there was no definite authority given to sell, then the property would come under review under the Family Maintenance Act.

LIMITED ACTION
He argued the mention of trust funds, in connection with the dealings, must be construed as applying only to payments received from the St. George and the Dragon Hotel Company.

"Is there no power of sale implied?" asked the court. "Upon trust for sale or with power to sell" were the terms usually used, replied Mr. Langley. If a trust for sale was implied it would be to the hotel company. The terms must be strictly made to conform to that. There must be a definite trust, or power, of sale vested in the company before they could act, said Mr. Langley. When the sale to Mr. Simpson was attempted, Mr. Langley pointed out that there was nothing to indicate what was to be done with the proceeds if that sale were carried out, as was specified in the proposed hotel deal.

When the hotel deal failed then the trust company became bare trustees. Mr. Heisterman had objections to the legal aspect of the situation, and Mr. White argued to safeguard the rights of the infant children who were the beneficiaries.

As a result of the debarment of the trust company as the legal owner of the property, at the present time under the trusteeship held under the will of Mr. and Mrs. Rattenbury.

PRECAUTIONS TO BE TAKEN

City Will Endeavor to Avoid Nomination of Candidates
Not Qualified

Every precaution will be taken this year to prevent any recurrence of candidates in the civic election filing nomination papers when they are not qualified. As a result of the debarment of Walter Inward as a candidate for council in 1933 after he had filed his nomination papers, steps have been taken to make it compulsory upon the candidate to make certain that his qualifications are in order. This will not be accomplished until the Provincial Legislature amends the Municipal Act.

Until such time as the act is clarified on this point, uncertainty exists as to who is responsible in the determining of a candidate's qualifications.

Already doubt has been expressed regarding one candidate's qualifications, while it is possible that another may also not have the proper qualifications.

THE QUALIFICATIONS
For the information of those running, the qualifications of a candidate are that he or she be a British subject, either by birth or naturalization, of the full age of twenty-one, who is the owner of property in the city for a period not less than six months preceding the election. In the case of an aldermanic or school board candidate, the aspirant must have property valued at not less than $500 above all encumbrances, while in the case of a candidate for mayor, he must have property to the value of $1,000 above all encumbrances.

Serious complications may arise from the election of a candidate not properly qualified. For instance, any business transacted by a council upon which a disqualified candidate sits, is illegal, and decisions of the council could, therefore, be contested in court. Further, a disqualified candidate when discovered to be not qualified to sit on the council, is penalized to the extent of the expense that the city is put to in rectifying the mistake.

FOUND DEAD AT HOME IN DUNCAN

DUNCAN, Nov. 21.—Thomas Wellington Dowd, a well-known fuel merchant of Duncan, was found dead at his home last night by the police, following an investigation when friends failed to get any response to telephone calls. It is believed that Mr. Dowd passed away in his sleep, and he had apparently been dead for two days when found. Mr. Dowd was unmarried and had no relatives in this province. He was born in Ontario on January 1, 1883. His parents are still living in Thanesville, Ontario. Mr. Dowd was a member of the Knights of

THE BANKING SYSTEM

Mr. Jackson Dodds, as retiring president, has been addressing the Canadian Bankers' Association. It was fitting that he should explain something about the place of banks in the community because there is no subject about which there has been so much misrepresentation for political purposes. Many fantastic notions have been bruited abroad, all with the object of showing that the banks are a sinister force. In the majority of cases they come from those who have had no banking experience, who are unaware of the simplest fundamentals of monetary methods and who have culled from textbooks unrelated statements in order to buttress up a false argument.

Instead of blaming banks for any of the present-day economic evils, the public should thank them because these evils are not more exaggerated than they are. For instance, Mr. Dodds points out that the banks of this country have been put to an extreme test on three occasions in the last six years. The first was the stock market crash; the second, when Great Britain went off the gold standard; and the third, the "bank holiday" in the United States. On each occasion these banks emerged with public confidence in them unshaken. The banks played a wonderful part in the preservation of public morale; they preserved the nation's credit; they gave assurance of recovery.

It is timely that the public should be told what the banks stand for and what they are doing all the time. In this country there are 4,700,000 depositors in the banks and 400,000 dependable borrowing customers. The amount of money deposited is $2,554,000,000. There are 30,000 shareholders drawn from all walks of life, and on an average each shareholder has thirty shares. The banks in this country are so firmly set, occupy so strong a place in the public estimation, that they have shown ability to emerge successfully from any crisis. This is due to the sagacious policy they have pursued. Critics of the banks never trouble to allude to these features of banking administration. The fact of the matter is that the more they know of the subject the less those who know have to say.

The question of the nationalization of banks was an issue in the late British election. It carried no weight whatever with the electorate. The people believed what Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, had to say on the subject and did not risk Socialist ownership of the banking system. "What would happen," asked Mr. Chamberlain, "if the country had to contemplate the nationalization of banking, land and four of our principal industries? Why, the mere announcement that such a thing was possible would mean that confidence would go in a day. Everyone who had any money in the banks would at once hasten to draw it out before it passed into the power of Socialist administrators. The price of securities would drop like a stone. Enterprise would be frozen solid; the price of foodstuffs would go up; so would interest rates; so would unemployment; and at the same time the revenue would begin to fall, not only because of the diminution of profits, not only because of the diminution of the revenue from dutiable imports, but also because of the depreciated value of great estates. My experience of Socialist schemes leads me to the conclusion that a large proportion of them are likely to be financially unsound. If so, then the nationalized banks won't be able to get their money back when they want it, and consequently the depositors won't be able to get their money back from the banks when they want it. This is no time for 'monkeying' with the buzz-saw. What the country wants is tranquility and confidence."

SLOPPY LANGUAGE

In the next British House of Commons there will be one member who is a stickler for the proper use of the English language. He is Mr. A. P. Herbert, who will be one of the representatives from Oxford University. His belief is that words are the tool of every trade and that "there is nothing snobbish or pedantic in expecting everyone to know (or try to know) his job." For instance, he prefers the word "fun" to "entertainment value"; he prefers "Tories" to "the forces of reaction," and "games" to "recreational facilities." He prefers also that we should say people "work together" instead of "co-operating" according to a co-ordinated plan and that people work "whole time" instead of "on a whole-time basis."

It is a strange thing that in an age of speed the speaking of the language should be lengthening out and resulting in more waste of time than ever before. Mr. Herbert can give almost countless illustrations of this. No longer, he says, do we "hunger" or "starve." Instead, "we exhibit evidences of malnutrition," or "our diet is characterized by protein deficiency." Nowadays a book is not "instructive," it has "a high educational content." Instead of saying "what is wanted is..." the expression used is "the requisites desiderated consist in..." In the past where a frontier was "defined" or "fixed" or "determined," it is now "delimited," or "demarcated," and perhaps it will not be long, says Mr. Herbert, before it is "delimited."

Modern methods of expression, says Mr. Herbert, "are based in origin or bad by themselves." There is a habit of inventing new words to give a twist to old ones, and possibly that is the reason why so much modern writing is ponderous. The paradox of the new methods is that while so many deny the dead languages it is always to these that they run to express themselves. There is more talk today than there ever was before of a "quota," or a "moratorium," or a "referendum" or "propaganda." Mr. Herbert has also a supreme contempt for "insanitary verbs." One he quotes is "to sabotage," an expression which is used in a wrong sense, inasmuch as it means "the malicious throwing of shoes, or sabots, by French workmen into the machinery of their masters." That verb he says should be "sabotaged" because the robust verb "to wreck" will always do the same work better.

Mr. Herbert's particular enemy is the bad English which comes of showing off or of sloppiness. In a book which he has called "What a Word," he has quoted, says The London Times, "instances that are shocking in number, in origin and in villainy." The cream of the joke comes when Mr. Herbert accuses the hard-headed, practical opponents of the study of the classics of being the very people who most frequently use, and therefore misuse, words and phrases of Latin and Greek origin, and therefore corrupt the English which they profess to respect. And the effect of the whole amusing, shocking, gallant book is to make it plain that these fruits of sketchy education, this showiness and sloppiness are preventing the language from growing in a healthy way at a natural pace, and are also making it more and more difficult for people to know and to say exactly what they mean.

THE HOLE IN ONE

In one golf club at least poetic justice is to shed its beneficent rays on the player who successfully holes out with his tee shot. It is the Wilderness Golf Club, where it is decreed that hereafter whoever makes a dodo is to be the sole recipient of rewards. He or she is to be entertained royally by the fellow members. No more, as in the past, will the fortunate player be expected to distribute largesse as a host at the bar. Skill will not mean that a bankrupt estate is inherited and that the pride of performance is extinguished by its costly aftermath. The halo of glory with which a hole in one invests any golfer, be he the veriest Rabbit or the most distinguished performer on the links, has had a habit of being "sickled over" with the pale cast of thought by the penalties which it entails. Not so hereafter on the Wilderness golf course. There the hero of a moment will be the much-feted one for hours. This is as it should be. The example ought to be copied at all clubs even if the projected reward brings in its train the law of diminishing returns.

A correspondent of The Toronto Globe has written to that paper saying he has $5,000 and wants to know what to do with it. That is a problem that would not perplex many people, and it is only very few who would seek advice on the subject. Once a vigorous correspondence was maintained in a London newspaper on "How I Would Spend £30,000 if I Won It in a Sweep-stake." The most pithy and succinct contribution to the subject came from an Aberdeen man, who simply wrote, "I wouldn't." Advice that can be derived from this might be given to the Toronto man who is perplexed about his nest egg. He should keep it for a rainy day.

The Halifax Herald says that a Prime Minister in this country hasn't a minute he can call his own. That is surely the language of exaggeration. He has hours and days and even weeks, sometimes when he is resting from his labors. He spends a lot of time traveling as well, which is time passed, often enough, in comparative idleness. The job may be no sinecure, but it affords more time for relaxation than almost any other job in the country.

THIS NIGHT IS MINE

This night is mine—these stars that burn
In cool, far meadows of the sky—
These winds that pass us and return,
Like ghosts of lovers gliding by.
Where are the cares I knew by day?
They melt beneath this moon that pours
Its liquid light across our way.
This night is mine. Come, make it yours.
This night is yours—this night of peace
Heavy and sweet with breath of flowers.
You, too, must give your heart release;
This night is yours. Come, make it ours.
This night is ours, I hear you say,
But what of morning, grey with sorrows?
Let things of day remain with day.
This night is ours, and not tomorrow.
—Anderson M. Scruggs, in The New York Sun.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

A friend that you have to buy won't be worth what you pay for him, no matter what that may be. —Pretence.

It has been said to be a goodly and pleasant thing for brethren to dwell together in unity; but the reference was to Christian brotherhood, not necessarily to human brotherhood. Well, the wise old ant from the top of his mythical high hill has been taking notes of what is going on in our human brotherhood, and if he were a cricket instead of a small insect, he would be singing a merry song because of what he sees. He sees hands which once were extended across the sea stretched across an international border (entirely unfortified), and hears expressions of goodwill and good will rising in vociferous chorus. But he also sees a nest of hornets let loose and hears buzzings of angry protest from a multitude of mouths.

It is a curious and not a pleasant thing when you come to think of it that the inevitable effect of reciprocity treaties is to produce new testimony to the unchangeableness of human nature and the ineradicable selfishness of human beings. If a trade treaty could be devised which would be entirely beneficial in its effects, affecting all interests adversely, that would be a perfect thing after its kind and all would call it blessed and none accursed. But it seems to be the fate of reciprocity treaties that one side gets the long and the other side the short end of the stick. Or one side imagines that it gets the long and the other side, the short end, which is practically the same thing and produces practically the same results.

There are political and economic idealists in both Canada and the United States who declare that we on this continent are all one family and that we should dwell together in unity, doing business with one another in amity, and if there are difficulties settling them without friction. But there are such things as family quarrels which culminate in bitter squabbles. Then there are mischief-makers who pour oil on the fire, adding fuel to the flames and intensifying the heat therefrom.

There are politicians in the neighboring country who are more interested in winning the next election than in promoting the best interests of the nations. Give those persons an opportunity, and they will take advantage of it regardless of the consequences. The first reciprocity treaty was killed because the gulf politicians of that day convinced the people of the United States that Canadians held the long end of the stick. Shrewd, and probably unscrupulous, politicians of this day are already telling the people of the United States that Canada has got the better of the reciprocity bargain and are demanding that the treaty shall be repealed before it goes into effect and reveals its qualities, either by Congressional action or by decree of the Supreme Court.

As an indication of the delicacy of any political situation involved in attempting to negotiate treaties of trade and commerce between the United States and Canada, it is a historical fact that governments in both countries have attempted to negotiate such treaties and have suffered defeats as consequences. It may be argued that that is one of the evil effects of a modern economic system, under which certain interests have become strongly established behind protective tariff walls. In the case under consideration the great difficulty in reaching unanimity of view is that there are so many products in both countries which are common. This is especially true of the agricultural industry, and the shrewd politician knows that the agricultural vote may determine the result of an election. The Roosevelt administration has succeeded by arbitrary measures in artificially increasing the prices of nearly all agricultural products, and the United States farmer decried objects to sharing his protected markets with the farmers of Canada.

One of the effects of the proposed reciprocity treaty is the emergence of former President Hoover from his cave, and one of the first political deliverances of the hermit is a bitter denunciation of President Roosevelt's free trade policies. There will be a presidential election in the United States within a year, and the reciprocity treaty with Canada will be the preponderating issue in the campaign. Business may be improving in the United States, but the depression has not been succeeded by prosperity. Business will not have had time to adjust itself to the new conditions, nor reciprocity to demonstrate its healing virtues before election day. Again history may repeat itself, and another reciprocity treaty be buried under an avalanche of bailouts. The above is by no means a remote possibility, and instead of the relations between the two nations becoming more cordial, those relations may be embittered.

Too Many Nods

There are many places where a nod is as good as a wink, but one place where a nod out of turn is expensive is at an auction sale. A well-known local taxi driver discovered this to his sorrow recently while attending a local auction sale. He now has two birds in a glass case, and is not sure whether they are grouse or ducks, and in addition is out of pocket exactly two-and-a-half-dollars. Perhaps the next time he will be careful when and where he nods, if at all.—S.T.

Do You Know That

Max Carey, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, made 400 or more putouts in a season six times. This is an all-time record and will be hard to equal by modern day players. . . . Wally Schang, former Red Sox and Yankee catcher, was credited with eight assists during a game played on May 12, 1920. . . . Babe Ruth hit his first homer off pitcher Jack Warhop, of the Yankees, while playing for the Red Sox, May 6, 1915. He hit his second off the same mound performer in June 2 of the same year. . . . Lacrosse is being played in seven-fifty schools in the United States and is gradually spreading to other institutions. . . . The multiplication sign was derived by changing the plus sign into the letter X, as multiplication is simply a shorter form of addition. . . . Another of the largest parades in history was the one staged by the Democrats in Chicago many years ago. More than 94,000 took part in it, and over a telephone system of those days the cheers of the throng could be heard in New York City, over 1,000 miles away.—J.D.

Peculiar Customs

Add to peculiar customs—A man living along the waterfront daily watches for the steamer from Vancouver to pass his home, hastily dons his overcoat and speeds down to the harbor so that he can count the passengers alighting. . . . This business of foraging for snipes, tinfoil and cigarette cards in the gutter has gone a bit too far. One day this week we followed a respectable-looking woman who was indulging in the nefarious practice in progress during a meeting of one of the ex-service men's clubs here. Finally an executive sprang to his feet and shouted: "I know more than I know." . . . In spite of millions of cases of salmon packed annually, we boarding house denizens are powerless to act. . . . One of our friends (yes we have a few) wants to know why customers entering his shop almost invariably leave the door wide open. Perhaps because they find it left open by those who entered before them.—G.B.

And the Whale Swallowed Jonah

An ostrich egg decorated with a colored picture of the place it came from in Africa, is one of the treasures in a little kindergarten museum of one of Victoria's well-known private schools. We were told by the head mistress, a few days ago, that many of the small folk who pour over the fascinating collection, are firmly convinced that all ostrich eggs have pictures on them when they are laid.—J.E.M.B.

Maybe So

As Andrew Carnegie Week approaches, and the public is made more library conscious, it might be well to point out that publishing houses would do well to keep abreast of libraries in the matter of improvements. I have yet to find a simplified version of Greek mythology, or books of mythology of other countries in the children's library, or in the adult section that carries an index on the proper pronunciation of legendary names. Apart from giving children an early knowledge of mythical characters it would be well to keep in mind that there are many who have not had the opportunity of studying the classics in anything but the English language, so that the pronunciation of proper names should be made available.—P.C.R.

J. E. MILLER
PASSES AWAY

Former Dominion Official Here Succumbs—Funeral On Saturday

Joseph Elwood Miller, former district inspector of the Department of National Revenue, here, died in Vancouver Wednesday following a long illness. He had been undergoing treatment in Vancouver for a few weeks. Mr. Miller was seventy-six years of age.

Mr. Miller was born in Ireland and had resided in Victoria for nearly thirty years. He entered the service of the Dominion Government at Kingston, Ont., in 1883. He served there for five years and was then transferred to Montreal. Mr. Miller was there one year.

In 1889, the deceased accepted the post of collector for the Mainland Division of Inland Revenue, with offices in Vancouver. Mr. Miller was promoted to the office of inspector of the branch in 1907 and came to Victoria to take over his duties. Fourteen years later, in 1921, following a merger of the departments of customs and excise, Mr. Miller assumed the inspectorship of both departments under the name of National Revenue.

LARGE DISTRICT
His district included Vancouver Island, the West Coast of British Columbia, north of Alert Bay, Queen Charlotte Islands, Northern British Columbia, Yukon and Alton. On his retirement from the senior inspectorship, he was presented with an illuminated address and a purse of gold. At the time of his retirement, in 1930, Mr. Miller was, in point of service, the oldest man in the Dominion Civil Service.

Mr. Miller was a thirty-third degree Mason. He was a charter member of the Victoria Valley, Scottish Rite, which was organized here in 1921.

Mr. Miller was a prominent sportsman. He was extremely popular, particularly among golfers, who knew him as "Joe." He was a strong Rugby enthusiast and was one of the founders of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club. He also had taken an interest in lacrosse, hockey, cycling and other branches of sport.

Spirit of Yukon Is Recaptured Here at Anglers' Jamboree

Victoria-Saanich Inlet Association Turns Chamber of Commerce Into Gold Rush Type Dance Hall—Characters Come to Life

TIME was reversed to the days of '98 here last night. Characters of the Yukon in gold rush days, made famous by Robert W. Service, came to life. Play was at its peak and money flowed freely. Beautiful dance girls strutted for the pleasure of the patrons, and the raucous cries of game handlers cut sharply into the din of the room. Thousands of dollars (in theatrical money) changed hands.

Victoria's Chamber of Commerce made a "duke" master of ceremonies in a tuxedo. President R. J. C. Smith spoke briefly at the outset. Mayor David Leeming attended and also spoke. Characters were "Dangerous Dan McGrew," James Townsend, "Lou," Miss Betty Mortimer, "Ragtime Kid," Len Holyoak, "Soapy Smith," E. Wilson, "Calamity Pete," Jim Carter, "Sam McGee," Boris Pettz, and "Black Jack," Frank More.

GOLD DAYS' CHARACTERS

Patrons received something of a thrill to wander from game to game to see each operated by a famous gold days' character. For instance, "Soapy Smith" handled the "lucky dice" game, and "Calamity Pete" conducted his own crap game. "Dangerous Dan McGrew" strided about in his tough manner chiding players to "stake a poke."

Her natural red hair peeping from a huge blue picture hat gave the boys a thrill as they looked at "The Lady Known as Lou." "Sam McGee," the young fellow from Tennessee, who complained of the cold so much until he was cremated on Lake Lebarge, passed to and fro, living his final moments. "The Ragtime Kid," "Black Jack," and all the others were there.

CHARACTERS OF CHANCE

There was opportunity of making money easily at the games and the spirit of "easy come, easy go" prevailed. Horse racing, roulette, fishing, wheel of fortune, crap, lucky dice, crown and anchor and red snapper races were among the games presented.

It was stated by some that the only lack of atmosphere was the bar which sold only coffee.

During the evening an auction sale was held and fabulous quantities of money were spent as the crowd purchased hidden articles. Of course, typical Yukon entertainment, in the way of dances, piano playing and instrumental selections was presented. The artists taking part were Peruliet, Ernest Prentice, Robert Peruliet, Fred Hunter, Leo Holden and Jerry Schofield.

E. L. Tait doffed his lawyer's robes for the night to become "boss." He

Oak Bay Friendly Help Enters Third Week of Its Financial Campaign

The Oak Bay Friendly Help Association enters the third week of its financial drive with a total of about half of the required $2,000 received.

The Friendly Help Welfare Society in each municipality is now entirely dependent on the generosity of its own residents for support as there will be no Greater Victoria drive this year.

The amount now on hand has been donated by slightly over 100 persons. The committee feels confident that there are in Oak Bay at least another 100 residents who feel their responsibility to the extent of a $10 subscription, although any larger or smaller amount will be gladly acknowledged by the treasurer, Mrs. Charles Hudson, 2012 Oak Bay Avenue. Cheques should be made payable to the Oak Bay Friendly Help.

TO CALL BIDS FOR NEW WING

B.C. Government Expected To Invite Tenders for $175,000 Project

Tenders for one of the largest building contracts to be offered by the Provincial Government this season will be called about the end of next week. Bids will be asked for the erection of a new Provincial tubercular wing at Vancouver, and for its equipment.

Hon. F. M. MacPherson indicated that plans for the building have been completed, and that minor details in connection with the equipment are now being worked out.

The estimated cost of the structure and its equipment has been tentatively placed at $175,000.

Details in connection with the heating and electrical specifications remain to be worked out before tenders are asked, it was intimated. The site picked for the new tubercular wing is on grounds adjacent to the Vancouver General Hospital.

MOVIE COMPANY AGAIN AT WORK

Spare Parts for Big Camera Brought Here From Hollywood By Airplane

After a one-day setback, owing to damage to intricate parts of their big camera, the staff and cast of the Central Films production, "Stop, Look and Love," returned to work in earnest late yesterday afternoon, and at an early hour this morning they were still "shooting" scenes by Klieg lights outside the main gates to the Willows grounds.

The big camera fell while being unloaded Wednesday at R. P. Butchart's grounds, where a garden scene was to be taken. Kenneth Bishop, producer, telegraphed Hollywood for spare parts, which arrived yesterday afternoon by airplane.

CATCHING MEALS

No time was taken by the picture people for regular meals yesterday. Hot coffee and sandwiches were taken to the staff and cast as they worked.

Owing to damage to the camera and a flaw in the sound equipment, which was not discovered for some time, many of the scenes will have to be retaken, it was understood.

More and more Victorians are besieging Mr. Bishop for parts in the picture. Yesterday, the producer found it necessary to have his room telephone disconnected at the Dominion Hotel.

Obituary

SORENSEN—Funeral service for Mrs. Martine Sorensen will be held this morning, at 11 o'clock, Rev. Edwin Bracher officiating, and interment will be made in Royal Oak Burial Park.

HEWLINGS—The funeral of Frederick Hayes Hewlings will be held tomorrow, the cortege leaving Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel at 2 p.m. and proceeding to St. John's Church, where service will be conducted by Rev. Canon Chadwick at 2:15. Interment will be in the family plot in Royal Oak Burial Park.

MANN—There passed away at St. Joseph's Hospital, yesterday, Mrs. Ellen Jane Mann, of Wilkinson Road, Saanich. Mrs. Mann, who was seventy years of age, was born in Wingham, Ontario. After residing in Penhold, Alberta, for some years, she moved to this city fifteen years ago. She is survived by two daughters, Miss H. Yeomans, Wilkinson Road, and Mrs. G. S. Love, in California, and one stepdaughter, Mrs. J. S. McPherson, of Ceylon, Sask.; also three stepsons, George and Edward Mann, in this city, and Harry Mann, at Penhold, Alberta. The remains are resting at the S. J. Curry & Son Funeral Home. Announcement of funeral will be made later.

HYNDS—The funeral of Miss Margaret Hynds, whose death occurred on November 18, took place yesterday. There was a large congregation of friends and the many beautiful floral offerings gave mute testimony of the love and esteem with which Miss Hynds was held by all who knew her. The service was conducted by J. Daniels, of the Gospel Hall. The hymns sung were "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and "When My Life Work Is Ended." The remains were laid at rest in the Colwood Burial Park. The following were pallbearers: W. McKinnon, R. C. Mackay, Tom Miller, G. R. Clare, A. V. Elmhirst and N. H. Cauffman.

Photographs taken by Howard Edwards, Maurice Pickering, Wilson Billingsley, A. N. Garland, Ted Wilson, Harvey Dobson, Miss Beryl Blair and William Mullins, together with the prize-winning pictures, will be on display in the Y.M.C.A. lobby until next Wednesday.

GARBAGE WILL BE DISCUSSED

Ald. Dr. J. D. Hunter to Seek Settlement Before Present Contract Expires

With the city's present garbage disposal contract with the Island Tug & Barge Company running out in three months' time, steps will be taken by Alderman Dr. J. D. Hunter to reach a settlement of the much-disputed question before the contract is renewed.

He will advance three proposals to the City Council for consideration, with the recommendation that the third suggestion be adopted.

Alderman Hunter's suggestions are that the council consider: Disposal of garbage through the medium of an incinerator, which would cost approximately $60,000; disposal by the method of dumping and filling in hollows, and constructing a second barge to hold garbage so that when one scow is filled, it can wait for an outgoing tide before being dumped at sea at a much greater distance from the city than at present.

EXTRA SCOW

The last suggestion is the one favored by Alderman Hunter. He explained that at present with only one scow the garbage had to be dumped as soon as the scow was full in order to provide space for other garbage that was collected. Thus the tug company is unable to dump the garbage on an outgoing tide at all times.

With an extra scow the company could wait for an outgoing tide and then dump the garbage well up the Strait so as to ensure it being carried out to sea.

Alderman Hunter is anxious that the council reach some decision on the question so that the trouble can be rectified before next Summer when the beaches are in use.

Chance of Making U.S.
Davis Cup Squad

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (P).—Indicating little change, if any, in the organization's cup policy, the entire slate of officers of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, headed by President Walter Merrill, has been named for re-election by the association's nominating committee.

With nomination tantamount to election at the annual meeting in Philadelphia, February 8, Hall, president for the last two years, is again expected to name Holcombe Ward, of New York, as head of the American Davis Cup team. Ward has been nominated for re-election as first vice-president.

A report circulated that a nucleus for next year's international campaign already had been chosen. Trials will be given at least six players, including Wilmer Allison, national singles champion; Johnny Van Ryn, Don Budge, Frank Shields and Bryan "Buzzy" Grant. Allison, Van Ryn and Budge were members of this year's team, which was defeated 5-0 by England in the challenge round at Wimbledon.

Officers renominated with Hall and Ward are: Joseph E. Ivy, Kansas City, second vice-president; Ralph W. Estcott, Chicago, secretary; and Lawrence A. Baker, Washington, treasurer.

The only change in the executive committee for the new year calls for the substitution of John C. Parry, Jr., of Philadelphia, president of the Middle States Association, for W. D. R. Evans, former head of the same association.

The Tourist

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 21 (P).—Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian Travel Bureau, suggested today that a greater exchange of tourists between Canada and the United States would follow signing last week of the Canada-United States trade agreement.

The travel bureau director predicted the tourist trade this year would be found to have brought Canada approximately $200,000,000, an increase of between 30 and 35 per cent over its value in 1934.

Under the direction of H. M. H. Macdonald and W. R. Bardsley, the toys will be repaired and distributed by Boy Scouts to children of needy families in time for Christmas.

Women willing to help dress dolls are asked to telephone E 1475, G 4332 or G 3391.

HONOR PRESIDENT ON RETIREMENT

Ladysmith Board of Trade Members
Give Farewell Dinner for
H. M. Foulkes

LADYSMITH, Nov. 21.—Optimistic notes were struck by the various after-dinner speakers the other evening here when members of the Board of Trade and others gathered at the Travelers' Hotel for a dinner in honor of N. M. Foulkes, who resigned his presidency of the board upon the occasion of his retirement this week from the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

Mayor W. W. Walkem, chairman for the evening, paid a glowing tribute to the effort and enthusiasm of the retiring president in connection with his work in the Board of Trade and in the Tourist Trade Development Association.

Adding to the chairman's testimonials to the guest of honor, the other speakers expressed the faith that Ladysmith was on the threshold of better times and that the hopes for the future looked distinctly better than for some time.

T. Collings rendered the only musical contribution of the evening. Mr. Foulkes expressed his regrets at his imminent departure from the community. In twenty-eight years of banking service with the Canadian Bank of Commerce, he had spent exactly a quarter of that period in charge of the Ladysmith branch. He too, was convinced that after the difficult transitional stage, the district would eventually establish itself on a firm progressive basis, because of the geographic, marine and timber resources of the locality. While he retired to Victoria, he would not leave the advances of the neighborhood with interest and gratification.

POSTPONE DATE OF
TAXI CASES HERE

In the city police court yesterday, three charges in which it is alleged there had been violations of the regulations now in effect governing the minimum taxi rate in the city were postponed until next Wednesday on the request of the city prosecutor.

C. L. Harrison informed the police magistrate that he had just learned that a witness named engaged at the Willows at present in the making of a moving picture. To have this witness would require delay.

R. D. Harvey, who appeared for the defendants, William Ferriday and E. Ferriday, complained of the delay with its inconvenience to the defendants.

Mr. Harrison said he could not help it, as he had just obtained the information. It was finally agreed to postpone the hearing until Wednesday which will be a peremptory date. Leslie Williams is the third defendant involved.

The mistress of the house took a friendly interest in her maid's love affair. One day she asked about it. "Oh, I've given that fellow up now," said the girl, coolly.

The mistress expressed her regret, but two days after she saw her maid out with the same young man. "Mary," she said in tones of surprise when the girl returned, "I thought you told me you had given up that young man."

"That's right, ma'am, I have," said the girl airily. "But, you see what it is: I had to give him a week's notice."

History of Railway Is Interesting

"Unless we have some realization of its background as related to the vast whole, we shall not be able to appreciate the dignity of the history of British Columbia," said Dr. Kaye Lamb, Provincial archivist, during an address last evening at the Y.W.C.A. as part of the programme of National Night, celebrated by the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club.

Dr. Lamb's subject was "The History of the Canadian Pacific Railway," dealing with the subject from the point of view of the realization

Hospital Ball Nets $671 for Two Auxiliaries

As a result of the annual ball held by the Royal Jubilee Hospital at the Empress Hotel recently by the Senior and Junior Women's Auxiliaries, the gratifying sum of $671 was cleared, it was announced yesterday. The money will be devoted to the auxiliaries' work for the hospital.

tion of a great idea, and prefacing his remarks directly concerned with the railway and its construction by a resume of the steps which led up to its actual building.

BIRTH OF AN IDEA

As long ago as 1838, Asa Whitney, an American, had conceived the idea of a transcontinental railway; in 1851 the first railway bill came up for consideration in Canada, but was rejected as being too premature. The "gold rush" was responsible for interest being shown in the project in England, and the Crimean War was also instrumental in fostering the idea, as it was thought advisable to establish a new trade route between Great Britain and the Far East across Canada.

In 1857 the Hector-Palliser expedition was sent out and the result of their exploration led to the drawing-up of a new map of Canada. In 1869 the Union-Pacific, the first railway to span the continent, was completed, and interesting slides of the meeting of the eastern and western divisions of this line were shown by Dr. Lamb.

Such names as William Moberly and Alfred Waddington were closely linked with the development of the railway. Dr. Lamb showed slides of the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway, taken from photographs in the Provincial Archives. Mrs. H. P. Hodges expressed the appreciation of the members and guests in the vote of thanks which was endorsed amid enthusiastic applause.

THE PROGRAMME
Miss Margaret Clay, second national vice-president of the club, spoke a few words on the significance of federation, which was three-fold. Each individual's interpretation of federation must fit into the general scheme, and this depended on the individual vision.

Mrs. Madge Hall, president of the Victoria Club, presided, and during the dinner, which preceded the programme and address, the guests of the evening were welcomed. Miss Clay read greetings from the following Business and Professional Women's Clubs, all of which were celebrating National Night: Montreal, Guelph, Kitchener-Waterloo, Chatham, Calgary, Edmonton, Vernon, Vancouver, Nanaimo, Hanna and Saskatoon, as well as special greetings from the national president.

Mrs. Stokes sang two solos, which were much appreciated. "Maid of Ganges" (Mendelssohn) and "Over the Dreamland Sea" (Phillips). Mrs. L. U. Conyers playing the accompaniments. Mr. H. Cartwright's violin solos, "Meditation" (Debussy) and "Paraphrase on 'My Old Kentucky Home'" (Langley), were received with sincere appreciation and applause. Miss J. Smith played the piano accompaniments with great artistic feeling. Mrs. Hall presented corsage bouquets to Mrs. Stokes, Mrs. Conyers and Miss Smith.

Engagement Announced

In honor of Miss Marguerite Dorothy Holmes a party was given in the K. of C. Hall on Tuesday, the occasion being her twenty-first birthday. During the evening Mr. and Mrs. J. Holmes, who came from Winnipeg to celebrate their daughter's birthday, announced her engagement to Mr. Albert Owen Harman. She is their only daughter.

Dancing was enjoyed and Mr. R. Pearson acted as master of ceremonies. Mr. A. L. Harman gave a number of tap dances. Mr. L. Lupton presented a sketch and Mr. Edward Veitch played violin solos, accompanied by Mrs. Veitch. Miss Phyllis Pearson sang. Supper was served in the dining-hall, the tables being prettily decorated with flowers and tapers in pink and white to correspond with the decorations of the birthday cake, which was later cut and distributed to the guests.

INVITED GUESTS

The invited guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. D. Hull, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Harman, Mr. and Mrs. J. Pearson, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Wratton, Mr. and Mrs. J. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. G. Weddings

HUGHES-McCLEAVE
A pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Stephen's Church, Mount Newton, at 1:15 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, November 20, when Mrs. Ruth McCleave, eldest daughter of Mr. F. W. Tomlinson and the late Mrs. Tomlinson, of Saanichton, was united in marriage to Mr. Samuel Rex Hughes, son of Mr. Samuel Hughes and the late Mrs. Hughes, of Keating. Rev. J. S. A. Bastin officiating. Given in marriage by her father the bride looked charming in a frock of midnight blue chiffon velvet, with long sleeves gathered at the elbow and long, tight-fitting cuffs, gathered high at the neck and held in place with a rhinestone ornament, and she wore a close-fitting hat modeled with tiny pink velvet flowers. Her corsage bouquet was of pink roses and fern. Miss Edith Jeanne was bridesmaid, wearing a dress of Marina blue chiffon and a blue and felt hat to match, her corsage bouquet being of pink carnations and ferns. Mr. Frank Hughes, brother of the groom, was best man. A reception was held after the ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Hendry, 3001 Scott Street, Victoria. The table was arranged with silver vases of late fall flowers and greenery which was centered with a three-tier wedding cake. The young couple left on the afternoon boat for Seattle, the bride wearing a green dress, brown tweed coat with hat and accessories to match. On their return they will reside at Barnton.

Mr. J. Kyle Officiates At Bazaar

A brief resume of the history of arts and crafts was given by Mr. John Kyle when he opened the bazaar held by the Victoria Women's Institute in the rooms on Fort Street, yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Kyle spoke of the progress which had been made in handicrafts through the ages, and expressed the hope that the new impetus which has been given to handicrafts of all kinds might be something permanent, rather than a fancy which had caught the imagination for a short time and which will sink again into the discard. Mr. Kyle was introduced by the president, Mrs. J. L. White.

Mrs. G. Sexton was the general convenor and the various stalls were well patronized, a large number of visitors being welcomed during the afternoon. Mrs. Gus Brown and Mrs. A. R. Harness had charge of the candy stall; Mrs. E. B. Blair, the miscellaneous table; Mrs. L. Schmelz and Miss Schmelz, the house house, and Mrs. Day and Miss Maynard, the home cooking. In charge of the tea arrangements were Mrs. M. Laird, Mrs. J. Terry and other members of the institute.

There was great interest in the display of weaving and basketry, which was under the direction of Mrs. J. L. White and Mrs. Ivor Austin.

Mrs. Fred Reed and Mrs. Claude Gernyn were joint hostesses recently at a delightful bridge party at the home of Mrs. Reed. There were five tables in play. First prize was won by Mrs. E. Hemmingsen; second, Mrs. Frank Plummer; third, Mrs. A. Kennedy. The traveling prizes were won by Mrs. G. K. Gillespie and Mrs. S. Gordon. Additional guests came later for tea.

Mrs. E. Ford, of the Lake Logging Company, is the guest for a week of Mr. and Mrs. R. Beech.

Mrs. W. Grosskleg entertained the Ladies' Bridge Club at her home on Tuesday afternoon. First prize was won by Mrs. W. H. Atkins and second, Mrs. G. Clarke.

Mrs. Harry Beech, entertained recently at bridge, the prize being won by Mrs. D. Rydeman.

Mr. F. E. Ullstrum, of Seattle, who has made his last business trip, for the season to the various camps, has left, accompanied by his daughter, to spend the winter months in California.

To Address Club On Peacemakers
Rev. Dr. Willard Brewster, of Vancouver, one of the most able speakers of Western Canada, will give the address at the meeting of the Women's Canadian Club on Tuesday afternoon. His subject will be "Facilitators or Peacemakers." The musical programme will be given by Mrs. Edward Parsons and Miss Dorothy Parsons, who will sing duets, accompanied at the piano by Mr. Parsons.

OLD DUTCH
IS SURFACE SAVING AND IS THEREFORE DOLLAR SAVING
Every day, more and more housewives find by experience that Old Dutch is better... it is quicker and more efficient... it does more cleaning per penny of cost.

Old Dutch alone gives such service and satisfaction because it is made with Seismotite (Reg. in Canada), a scratchless cleaning and polishing material scientifically processed and compounded with other valuable ingredients.

Save time, work and money by using Old Dutch on any surface water will not harm—porcelain, enamel, metal, glassware, painted woodwork and floors, even white canvas shoes.

Old Dutch is kind to the hands, leaves no gritty residue and doesn't clog drains. It's the biggest cleaning value you can buy.

Morro Castle's First "Stand By" Signal Silenced by Shore Operator

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP)—The wireless operator of a rescue ship testified today that the Tuckerton, N.J., shore wireless station ordered off the air the preliminary distress signals of the liner Morro Castle as she burned at sea nearby, with a resulting loss of 124 lives. The operator, George Silberman, of the Andrea A. Luckenbach, a freighter, testified at the Federal Court trial of two of the Morro Castle's officers and the ship's owners on charges of criminal negligence.

"At 3:15 a.m. (E.S.T.) the Morro Castle operator started to send a 'stand by' signal, and as he did so, the Tuckerton operator broke in and said: 'Silent period, be quiet.'"

"At 3:19 a.m. the Morro Castle messenger her stand by signal and sent a minute later with an SOS."

MARIE BLIZARD

CHAPTER XI

Carol Kennedy's wealth was nothing for her to get excited about. She had had it all her life. Until she was twenty-one years old, she had not the slightest idea what her income was, how large or how small. The expenditure of money to keep the old-fashioned house in Connecticut running with its small staff of old servants, to send her to college, to pay the bills for her invalid mother and the travels of the past four years was left entirely in the hands of her mother. That wealth could buy a kind of happiness she did not know. And so, when she learned that her mother had made well over $2,000,000 she found no change in her mode of life and forgot it just as she always had.

But when she walked into the gaze of Gary Crandall and saw wonder that was almost awe in her face and heard him breathe the word "ravings," then she was stirred by this new possession—beauty—as she had never been stirred by wealth.

Her own eyes were not blind and when first she looked into the mirror and saw what miracles of transformation had been worked upon her, she knew that always the foundations of beauty had been there. They had not changed the contour of her face, the color of her eyes. They had used—"brought them out." They had brought glints of red-gold to the soft hair that had hung drab and lifeless on her small head before, hiding its delicate contours. Skillfully, they'd darkened and shaped the wing-like brows and shaded the long lashes so that their darkness deepened the grey of her eyes to violet. It all seemed so simple and so incredibly marvelous!

She could use rouge and soft creams and powders, a lipstick and eyeshadow like other girls! That this knowledge should have been a surprise to her is incredible. But had installed the gleaming tiles and chromium were enhanced by the most amusing wallpaper, the gayest little rug and curtains Isabel could find.

Then came the furnishings of this dollhouse. It was simply furnished. It had taste and grace. It was expressive of the girl, Carol. Sunlight streamed through gossamer curtains like sheer, petticoats beneath the stiff rich folds of turquoise satin at the windows. It shone on mahogany and silver on the crystal bowls filled with flowers and placed on the low tables. And when night-time came and the curtains were drawn, firelight played across the white fur rug before the hearth, lighted up the chintz-covered chairs and contacted the rows and rows of books in the open shelves that lined the room as high as a man's waist.

It was like a corner out of a charming country house presided over by a gracious lady. You would not say of it: This is the home of a millionaire. Nor would you say: The girl who lives here is a working girl without any profession. No. Its only identification was the stamp of Carol's personality and taste.

In the last two weeks of its making she had barred her two friends, Isabel and Gary, but at last it was ready, and she had invited them to supper. Lovingly, she straightened the last pillow, placed cigarettes and matches in every available place, lifted the cover of the chafing dish, to sniff deliciously of the chicken hash bubbling there.

The grandfather's clock she had brought from home chimed eight before the first of her guests arrived. It was Gary bounding up the stairs and hunting through the door.

"Something smells good," he said.

"But it will have to wait. Get into that black dress and make it fast."

"But please, Gary," she pleaded, "I can't! Isabel is invited and—"

"No buts, ifs or ands. I've come along, I've got a job for you, I

"Is This Gratitude?"

Carol's one pitiful attempt to aid herself with artifice had been so awkward it had sickened her. Now that she knew the experiment had been a success, that the tight little clutching at her chest had been the dread and hope that something like this would happen, she could not sustain it. And so she found herself crying as though her heart was breaking. It was not. And in that moment with her head on Gary Crandall's perfectly tailored shoulder a new thought that brought her joy and misery came to her. She thought of Owen Craig's shoulder and knew her head would never rest there.

"Is this gratitude?" Gary demanded.

"I'm so terribly happy," she said, bringing her head up. "You must give me a minute to realize it. I'll . . . I'll pay for it myself."

"Forget it," he said. "That isn't what I mean by gratitude. I mean that you shouldn't spoil such a good job. Maseara won't stand up under tears, and by the way, you must learn to use those things as you hear taught."

Carol had every intention of becoming an excellent pupil at the art of making herself attractive. Gary went on:

"The next step is the apartment. Truly the next step was the getting of an apartment. And it was Isabel to whom Carol finally confided her plan of finding fun, her desire that no one know she had a fortune, who obtained the apartment. It was not the kind of the apartment for an heiress. There were no doormen and no splendid foyer in the little house over on the East river where Isabel found the two-room apartment with the big living room where the windows caught the rising sun and the ever-changing panorama of the river.

Carol loved it from the first moment her delighted eyes fell upon it. The fireplace was a trifle crooked, the floor boards were not even. The small leaded panes of the windows were caked with dirt and paint. The walls were hideously yellow. And the bath was something Carol could not accept. But these were deficiencies that added to the fun for they offered her weeks of absorption in the work of building them over. Weeks of pleasure that only a woman knows.

They began Gary, Isabel and Carol with the fundamentals. Gary, dressed in soiled flannels that came from Savile Row, dove into the heart of manual labor with a fervor he didn't know he had. He superintended the planing and polishing of the floors until they shone with a patina that was like silk. He messed with paints and their mixing until green that was like the first new leaves of spring was perfectly applied to the living-room walls. It took him days to achieve this indescribable blue that lies between turquoise and the shade of noon-day sky blue for the little bedroom walls.

And in the new bath (Carol had thought! But if you don't get it tonight, you never will. A bee-you-tiful job right out of a clear sky and you're the only girl for it. Hurry while I go round the corner for a shave."

That Body of Yours

(By James W. Barton, M.D.)

ABDOMINAL SYMPTOMS MAY FOLLOW THE EATING OF CERTAIN FOODS

That certain foods, pollen of plants, horse hair, the fur of animals cause attacks of asthma, hay fever, eczema and hives has been amply proven. This is called allergy.

That certain foods may cause disturbances in the abdomen is also known, but it is now believed that some foods are blamed when they are not at fault.

Dr. J. A. Ryle, London, in the British Lancet, says that no abdominal or blood circulation disturbances should be said to be due to allergy—sensitivity to foods or other substances—unless two or preferably three of the following conditions or circumstances are present.

1. The symptoms should closely resemble the usual symptoms due to "serum" sickness; that is, slight fever, redness of the skin, the formation of hives, intense itching, and sometimes swelling of the glands, pains in the joints and back.

2. The patient should have a "sensitivity" (that is have some of the above symptoms) when he eats certain foods, uses certain drugs or comes in contact with certain substances.

3. There should be other conditions such as hay fever, asthma, eczema, occurring at the same or at other times.

4. There should be a family history of asthma, hay fever, or eczema.

5. The abdominal disturbances should occur at regular or similar intervals to any of these other "allergic" conditions.

6. Every care should be taken not to confuse these abdominal symptoms with some other organic (real) disease of the body. Thus where part of the nervous and sometimes the gland system is at fault, there will be sensations of fullness, pressure, constipation or diarrhoea, chronic inflammation of the large intestine.

The point, then, is that it is possible to have abdominal symptoms or distress due to various substances just as these substances cause skin, nose and throat reactions, but that in order to make sure that these symptoms are due to these special foods, two or more of the above conditions should be present.

Many find that they have a "stuffy" feeling in the nose after eating a certain food, but never attribute the feeling of tenesmus or abdominal pressure which may occur a few hours later, to the eating of this particular food.

AGAINST COMPULSORY MOTOR CAR INSURANCE

Compulsory automobile insurance is not favored by the Boston Automobile Club, the Victoria Automobile Club was advised by letter yesterday. The local organization has been seeking information regarding such insurance and is now awaiting reports from England.

Boston club officials stated in the letter that compulsory insurance in the State of Massachusetts, encouraged "rackets" and fake claims, and had made motorists careless and increased accidents.

NORTHLAND HAS
BRIGHT FUTURE

Robert Taylor Foresees Great Mining Development Throughout Yukon Area

Men who live the year around in the country and predict a great future for it, and Robert Taylor, of Whitehorse, Y.T., who was registered yesterday at the Strathcona Hotel with his bride, is no exception.

For the first time in six years, Mr. Taylor, who is a section foreman on the White Pass & Yukon Route narrow-gauge railway, came "out of the North" only a few weeks ago. Just a week ago, in Vancouver, he married his sweetheart, who came all the way from Scotland for the ceremony. Mr. Taylor predicts a bright future for the gold settlement of Carmacks, and foresees the old gold fields thriving again. Employment can be obtained here and there throughout the country, he said.

Mrs. Gassaway: "So your husband has been deceiving you, has he?" Mrs. Gassaway: "Yes, I've been giving him a dime every day to ride to work on the bus, and now I find out that he's been walking and spending the money."

MRS. MCKENELLY OF LADYSMITH PASSES

NANAIMO, Nov. 21.—Mrs. Mary Eliza McKenelly, aged eighty, well-known resident of Ladysmith for the past thirty-six years, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. McKenelly.

Donald, Esplanade, Ladysmith. She was born in New Brunswick. Other daughters surviving her are: Mrs. E. Ratford, Seattle; Mrs. W. G. Mills and Mrs. H. H. Phillips, Vancouver. The remains were brought to Chapman's Undertaking Parlor, Nanaimo, pending funeral arrangements.

KING SORROWS FOR JELICOE

Pays Royal Tribute to Great
Seaman—Burial to Take Place in St. Paul's

LONDON, Nov. 21 (C).—A court circular issued tonight expressed the "profound sorrow" of the King at the death of Earl Jellicoe, commander of the Grand Fleet at the Battle of Jutland.

The circular said: "The King has learned with profound sorrow of the death of Earl Jellicoe, who will for all time be remembered as the commander of the Grand Fleet during a long and critical period of war."

DEEPLY FELT LOSS
"The King knows the loss of this great seaman will be deeply felt throughout the whole Empire, and not least by the people of New Zealand, the Royal Navy and ex-servicemen, whose confidence and affection he quickly won by his devotion to their welfare."

The funeral of Admiral Jellicoe will take place at noon next Monday, November 25. Full honors will be paid him. The admiral's body will rest in a crypt in St. Paul's Cathedral a few feet from the tomb of Nelson, hero of the Battle of Trafalgar. Arrangements are now under way for the route of the funeral cortege.

Admiral Jellicoe died last night following a chill which he caught while attending Armistice Day services at Whitehall.

SET FINE EXAMPLE
In his tribute to the former commander of the fleet, The Times said: "Earl Jellicoe set an example of integrity, courage, dignity and self-control. He could pass through the heavy fire of fierce, unending controversy with never a word or a deed to diminish the respect in which he was held, and he could state his own defence with modesty and candor and without belittling the achievements of others."

CONFIDENCE MEN HAVE EASY PREY

Take Five Thousand Dollars From Farmer as "Security" for $100,000 Winnings

TORONTO, Nov. 21 (C).—City and Provincial Police are today looking for three confidence men who robbed an Orangeville farmer of $5,000 in a race horse betting game.

The men led the farmer to believe that he had won $100,000 on bets, but when he went to collect in a downtown office building he was told he would have to put up security, which he did, $500 in cash, two $1,000 Manitoba bonds and three $1,000 Saskatchewan bonds, later realizing he had been duped.

Little Stories for Bedtime

Peter Discovers Spooky

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Peter Rabbit had been startled by a voice as he was passing a certain big apple tree in the Old Orchard. The voice had seemed to come from that big apple tree. Peter stopped short and stared up through the branches of the tree. Look, he would he couldn't see anybody. There wasn't a leaf on that tree and he could see all through it. Peter blinked, he felt foolish, very foolish indeed. He knew that had there been anyone sitting on one of those branches he couldn't have helped seeing them.

"Don't look so high, Peter. Don't look so high," said the voice, with a chuckle. This time it sounded as if it came right out of the trunk of the tree. Peter stared at the trunk, then suddenly laughed right out. Just a few feet above the ground was a good-sized hole in the tree, and poking his head out of it was a funny little fellow with big eyes and a hooked beak.

"You certainly did fool me that time," Spooky, cried Peter. "I ought to have recognized your voice, but I didn't."

Spooky the Screech Owl, for that is who it was, came out of the hole in the tree, and without a sound from his wings flew over and perched just above Peter's head. He was a little fellow, not more than eight inches high, but there was no mistaking the family to which he belonged. In fact, he looked very much like a small copy of Hooty the Great Horned Owl, so much so that Peter felt a little cold shiver run over him, although he had nothing in the world to fear from Spooky. His head seemed to be almost as big around as his body, and he seemed to have no neck at all. He was dressed in bright reddish-brown with little streaks and bars of black. Underneath he was whitish with little streaks of black and brown. On each side of his head was a tuft of feathers. They look like ears, and some people think they are ears, which is a mistake. His eyes were round and yellow with a fierce hungry look in them. His bill was small and almost hidden among the feathers of his face, but it was hooked just like the bill of Hooty.

As Spooky settled himself he turned his head till he could look squarely behind him, then brought

"You haven't told me yet why you look so unhappy, Peter," said Spooky.

It took again so quickly that to Peter it looked as if it had gone clear round. You see, Spooky's eyes are fixed in their sockets, and he cannot move them from side to side. He has to turn his whole head in order to see to one side or the other. "You haven't told me yet why you look so unhappy, Peter," said Spooky.

Next story: Spooky Explains Some Things.

TO PAY TRIBUTE TO C. H. DICKIE

Friends of Former Member of Dominion House to Gather at Duncan, November 30

C. H. Dickie, former member of the Dominion House of Commons for the Nanaimo constituency, will be honored with a public expression of good will at Duncan on November 30, at 3:30 p.m., when friends will gather to pay tribute to his long service in the political life of Canada.

A special committee has been appointed to arrange a suitable testimonial. Rev. Arthur Bischoffberger is chairman and Col. W. B. Clayton is the honorary treasurer. It is understood the testimonial has already been largely signed and contains the names and contributions of scores of persons, both in the Nanaimo riding and other parts of Vancouver Island.

Mr. Dickie, who is seventy-seven years of age, for the past fifteen years was member for Nanaimo riding.

Flannigan met with an accident, but the next day managed to crawl to work.

"Arrah, why didn't ye stay home for a week or two?" said Flannigan. "Worren't ye carryin' an accident policy?"

"I wor not—bad oas to me carelessness!" said Flannigan. "I had left it home in me bureau drawer."

The champion misanthrope was standing with several others upon the steps of the county courthouse. The noon hour came and the whistle on the nearby-planing mill sounded.

"Twelve o'clock," he remarked, "if it is ready I ain't a-goin' to eat home to dinner. If dinner ain't ready I'm going to raise hell, and if it is ready I ain't a-goin' to eat a damn bite."

Marconi is more than a name. It is radio itself... and has been since the dawn of the century when the then unknown young inventor startled the world with the miracle of "Wireless Telegraphy". Today's superb models are the crowning achievement of the world's most significant radio career. Into each new feature has gone the matchless world-wide research facilities and inventive genius of Marconi. The equipment required to bring these features into being is designed and built by Marconi. Marconi Receivers, as the name implies, are Marconi through and through. They mean brilliant, full-time performance over all wave bands.

Troublesome Night Coughs Hard on the System

It is the cough that sticks; the cough that is hard to get rid of; the cough, accompanied by a tickling in the throat, that causes the nerve and throat wracking trouble that keeps you awake at night.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup relieves this coughing condition by soothing the irritated parts, loosening the phlegm, and strengthening the bronchial organs. When this is done there is no more lying awake at night with the system wracking, irritating cough.

Get a bottle from your druggist. It will help you.

NAVY STORY NOW AT THE DOMINION

Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler Co-Starring in "Shipmates Forever"—Plot Is Good

The thrill and romance of naval officers in the making, men who in peace or in war heroically brave death for their country in their line of duty, is colorfully depicted in the new Warner Bros. Cosmopolitan drama-with-music, "Shipmates Forever," which is scheduled as the feature attraction at the Dominion Theatre today.

It is an intimate and revealing story of the lives of the midshipmen in their study rooms at Annapolis, on the parade grounds, and their cruises at sea. It pictures them at work and at play; their loves and their laughter; their loyalty and their courage "under fire."

Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler head the cast. Dick personifies the raw cadet, somewhat spoiled but with the makings of a man, who is whipped into shape as a gallant officer through the rigor of the Naval Academy training, and Ruby, the loyal daughter of the Navy.

Dick sings; fights a bitter battle alone with himself and finally winds up as a hero who dashes through scalding steam and flame to rescue a shipmate. Ruby dances to gay throngs, the while she fights desperately to win the man she loves to the traditions of the navy.

CAPITOL—"Broadway Melody of 1936" will be seen at the Capitol Theatre for the last times today. Jack Benny, of radio fame, is seen in the leading role, supported by Eleanor Powell, the wonder tap dancer, who has taken Hollywood by storm.

LITTLE—"Transatlantic Merry-Orpheum Go-Round," Reliance's Theatre, sparkling new comedy drama with melody, mystery and romance, staged aboard a palatial ocean liner, is now at the Little Orpheum Theatre. A great cast of screen and radio stars, headed by Jack Benny, Nancy Carroll and Gene Raymond, is seen in this Harry M. Goetz-Edward Small production, which Benjamin Stollor directed for release through United Artists.

PLAYHOUSE For the first time in the history of motion pictures, great symphonic music has been brought to the sound screen directly from its performance on a studio stage. "Break of Hearts," now at the Playhouse Theatre, which stars Katharine Hepburn and Charles Boyer, achieves this feat. The music also was recorded simultaneously with the action of the dramatic players in this production. In "Break of Hearts," there was no so-called "dubbing in" of the music after the scenes had been "shot."

COLUMBIA Dog actors are doing THEATRE a thriving business in Hollywood. In the First National picture, "While the Patient Slept," the Clue Club production which is now at the Columbia Theatre, a great Dane is used to howl at night to add to the mystery. Other First National pictures in which dogs appear include "Living on Velvet," in which there is a

TUNEFUL OPERA TO BE PRESENTED SOON

One of the most tuneful of twentieth century light operas is that of Oscar Straus, "The Chocolate Soldier," which will be produced at the Royal Victoria Theatre by the Victoria Civic Opera on December 5, 6 and 7.

With Basil Hornsall as director, this production should mark another step forward in the organization's bid for a permanent position in the entertainment field. There will be a chorus of seventy persons, and an augmented orchestra. All costumes will be done locally through the Women's Workroom, while the opera will be given its proper stage settings.

Those who saw "Lohengrin" know the high standard of the Victoria Civic Opera's talent, while those who failed to see the first production of the newly formed organization are advised not to miss "The Chocolate Soldier."

"Actually transformed my teeth in 6 days"

Remarkable special-formula tooth paste combats 5 common conditions

Everywhere they are talking about it... the way this modern tooth paste transforms the teeth.

It contains a special formula—a combination of master cleansing and polishing agents—more effective by far than ordinary pastes and powders. No wonder it combats the 5 conditions that mar beauty. Hard-to-clean teeth show immediate improvement. Dull teeth gleam and shine after one or two brushings. Food stains disappear like magic, in many cases. So does that unpleasant coating on the tongue, if it is properly brushed. Gums are stimulated when the paste is used with massage.

And don't forget—the mild fruit acids are included for their alkaline effect. Try a tube today. Lambert Pharmaceutical Co. (Canada) Ltd., Toronto, Ont.

Helena Earthquake Scenes Presented In Dominion News

WALLS thundering to earth as workmen strive to preserve quake-stricken Helena, Mont., from further toll of human life are to be seen in the current issue of The Colonist-Universal Newsreel, now showing at the Dominion Theatre.

Swirling snowstorms add to the dismay of the quake victims, many of whom are sheltered from the bitter weather in railroad coaches. Continued shocks take new lives in the torn city.

Other important events in the current reel include the damages to frame and brick homes in New York City by a midnight temblor that swept the area, cracking walls and crumbling the foundations of old buildings in Brooklyn. Rev. Joseph J. Lynch, of Fordham Observatory, discusses the phenomenon that terrified residents of Gotham.

Ethiopian soldiers and civilians, fearful of air raids following the departure of Italy's envoy, trying on gas masks as new hordes of wild tribesmen gather in Addis Ababa, are also to be seen in the reel, as is Notre Dame's great last-quarter comeback to defeat Ohio State, 18 to 13, before 81,000 at Columbus, O., and the brilliant new cars on display as the 1936 Automobile Show gets under way in New York City.

Jane Dixon Says:

LOVE WITHOUT FAITH IS A PRETTY POOR FOUNDATION FOR MARRIED HAPPINESS

Why do young women marry when they have no more than half a loaf of love to bring to the wedding feast?

I am speaking of young women who have good positions, comfortable homes, every facility for present happiness, every hope for the future.

To hear some of them reason, one would think that every girl has but one chance to marry, and that she must swing onto that chance when it happens along, regardless of whether it is good, bad or indifferent.

Weak sisters who either can't or won't support themselves are given to slandering a meal ticket.

There is no excuse for an intelligent woman who is economically independent to compromise with her heart, her ideals, or to join the marriage breadline.

Jane Dixon: Three months ago I met a very nice young man. It was love at first sight. At that time he had a fairly good job and we went together steadily. Eight weeks ago he lost his job. He hasn't looked for another. I realize that jobs are scarce, but he might try for one.

I come from a fine family, have a good education, hold a responsible position and make more per week than he ever will make. His family is of a very low class. He has a very meagre education, and I now hear his family is on the Welfare.

When he was working it was agreed we'd become engaged in October. I wonder if I should not tell him we must stop going together steadily until he finds work. I'll admit I love him. He comes to see me every night in the week, even calls for me each evening and takes me home from work.

My parents have reached the point where they object to his coming to see me so often. I have asked him time and time again not to do so, but he refuses to listen. He is very jealous and is afraid I'll go out with other young men on the evenings he is not with me. I'm twenty-four, and he is the first young man I've allowed to court me. I've had many other offers, but those who made them didn't happen to be my type—Perplexed.

THEY HAVE NO FAITH IN EACH OTHER

Answer: What do you mean, you'll admit you love this young man? If your feeling for him must assume the form of an admission, it is not love. Love, when it is real and true, is a proud boast, not a reluctant gift.

Your critical attitude toward the young man is not the attitude of a woman in love.

You feel he is your inferior.

As a fiancee he has failed to measure up to your standards.

How, then, do you think he will measure up as a husband? The chances of an inadequate fiancee's becoming an admirable husband are about one in a thousand.

Love without faith is a pretty poor foundation for married happiness. In fact, there can be no real love without faith, but only a poor substitute for a divine passion.

Neither you nor the young man have faith in one another.

You believe he lacks ability to make the living you make for yourself; you accuse him of shiftlessness and of mean jealousy. He fears you will trick him and bestow your favors elsewhere if he is not on hand to watch you.

By all means tell him your engagement must be indefinitely postponed. Insist on seeing him less frequently.

You will never find happiness with one you estimate as an ambitious "low class" marriage partner.

Connie Mack Disposes of Shortstop and Outfielder—Pinky Higgins Goes to Yankees—Tigers Have Opportunity to Get Simmons—Foxy May Remain With Philadelphia

By PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Staff Writer.
DAYTON, O., Nov. 21 (AP).—A whirlpool of rumors made everyone dizzy at the Minor Baseball League convention today, but it was learned from reliable sources that:

JIMMY FOXY
York Yankees.

2. Bob Quinn had agreed definitely to serve as general manager of Boston Braves, who will be reorganized within the next few days on a basis that will surprise everyone.

3. Outfielder Al Simmons, of Chicago White Sox, will play for Detroit next year if Mickey Cochrane can sell him to Walter O. Briggs, now sole owner of the world champions.

4. Jimmy Foxy, star home run hitter of the Athletics, may remain in Philadelphia after all, still acting as the backbone of the club. Offsetting that information was a persistent report that Foxy would go to the White Sox.

Simmons angered the White Sox a week ago when he ripped up a new contract that was offered to him. He drew $25,000 last season and the White Sox offered him but $12,500 for 1936. Manager Jimmy Dykes admitted all this and freely predicted that Simmons would be playing for the Tigers next year.

With Simmons on the move, the report that Chicago would get Foxy gained wide circulation, but no one would lend any credence to it.

APPOINTED MANAGER

DAYTON, O., Nov. 21 (AP).—Oscar Vitt, formerly with Detroit, Cincinnati and Boston Red Sox, is the new manager for Newark of the International League.

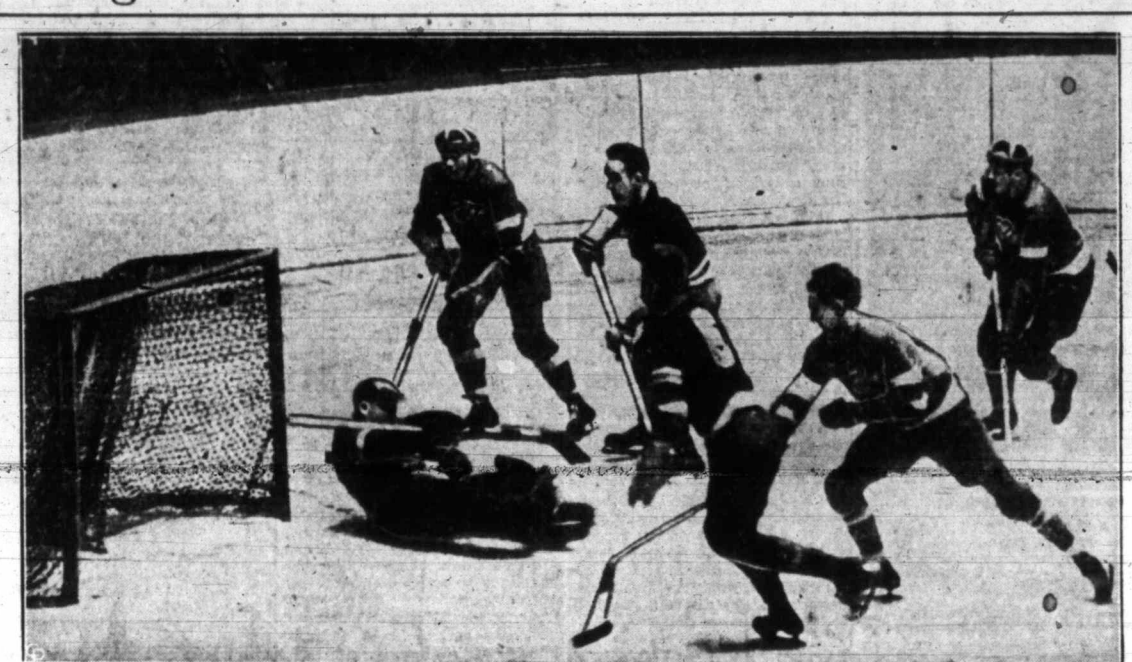

Vitt managed the Oakland Club of the Pacific Coast League last season. Bill Meyer, manager of the Birmingham Club of the New York-Pennsylvania League, will replace him at Oakland. Both Oakland and Newark are New York Yankee farms. Bob Shawkey piloted Newark last season.

PRESIDENT RESIGNS

DAYTON, O., Nov. 21 (AP).—Thomas Jefferson Hickey, "Grand Old Man" of the American Baseball Association, which he founded in 1902, surrendered the presidency today. His action was voluntary, as six of the clubs voted to retain him. The seventy-four-year-old prexy accepted an offer of a life-time job as chairman of the association's board of directors—a new position.

A new president will be named at the December 10 meeting in Chicago. There are a host of candidates for the job, but the most favored ones are Lou McEvoy, business manager of St. Louis Browns; Judge Ed Norris, of Toledo; Francis J. Powers, Chicago sports writer; Ed Shave, St. Paul newspaperman; and Billy Evans, former general manager of Cleveland Indians.

SHARKEY OPENS RING COMEBACK

BOSTON, Nov. 21 (AP).—Jack Sharkey weighed 195 pounds and claimed he possesses 60 per cent of his great boxing skill today when he completed training for his comeback campaign. He hopes for victories eventually over Joe Louis and Jimmy Braddock, the current heavyweight champion.

Sharkey, in light training ever since he dropped his title to Primo Carniero more than two years ago, when he weighed 209, engages Eddie "Unknown" Winston, a busy and fairly constant negro battler from Hartford, Conn., tomorrow night in a ten-rounder at Boston, Garden. Sharkey, although not as fit as he claims, is favored to win over Winston.

HALIFAX, Nov. 21 (AP).—The Amateur Athletic Union of Canada decided today to approach railroad companies with a view to obtaining a "cent-a-mile" rate for all traveling athletes. The motion was made by the British Columbia branch.

Favorites Advance in Table Tennis Tourney

Top-ranking local table tennis players survived the first round of the international tournament which opened yesterday evening at the Crystal Garden under the auspices of the Victoria Table Tennis League.

There were a number of extra-set matches as the cream of Victoria's ping-pongers fought to stay in the running in the big meet. The feature of the evening's play was the five-set struggle between V. Tuily, of the Victoria Redwings, and W. Bowden, a teammate, with the former finally stroking his way to a great victory.

Wilnot Brown-Cave, city champion, came through with an easy straight-set victory over Bill Erickson, veteran member of the Royal Arcanum squad. The scores were 21-7, 21-10, 21-12.

W. Whittingham, former English star, now a member of the Melrose Paint Company, trounced R. Rigby, of the Times, in straight sets. The scores were 21-12, 21-8, 21-11.

AMERICANS PLAY TONIGHT
Visiting American stars will take the tables this evening at 8 o'clock.

Amateurs-Pros Not Permitted To Intermerge

HALIFAX, Nov. 21 (AP).—Diehard conservatives and tolerant liberals staged a bitter battle at tonight's session of the forty-eighth annual meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada as the governing body came to a decision not to permit the intermingling of amateurs and professionals under any circumstances.

A resolution, put before the meeting by the resolutions committee, to permit an amateur team to carry one professional from another sport, formed the ground of the dispute which lasted three hours. When the final vote was taken, however, after many amendments, delegates were found overwhelmingly against lowering the bars between professionals and amateurs.

THE RESULTS

Results of last night's play follows:
W. Erickson defeated E. Bridge, 21-14, 21-19, 21-13.
H. Lowe defeated T. Kay, 21-17, 21-8, 21-12.

W. Bowden defeated A. Taylor, 21-9, 21-7, 21-18.
W. Whittingham defeated R. Rigby, 21-12, 21-18, 21-15.
Eric Cox defeated C. Lutton, 21-17, 21-18, 21-15.

10:00—Consolations.

Sunderland, leader of the First Division by a two-point margin over Derby County and Huddersfield Town, is likely to strengthen its position.

Aston Villa's spectacular plunge into the transfer market has excited unusual interest, and it is probable the Birmingham ground record of 57,806 will be broken.

Tough battles are in prospect for Derby County and Huddersfield, who visit Liverpool and West Bromwich Albion at Stamford Bridge.

In the Second Division, Tottenham Hotspur will find Southampton a hard team to beat at the Dell. Bracketed with Tottenham for the leadership, Leicester City entertains Plymouth Argyle and may jump to the top of the standings.

Reading, with a long lead at the top of the Southern Section, Third Division, is likely to capture maximum points at Watford, and in the Northern Section Tranmere Rovers will meet Chester, the runner-up.

SCOTTISH LEAGUE
GLASGOW, Nov. 21 (AP).—After a number of listless week-ends in the Scottish Football League schedule, enthusiasts in the land of the heather are all set for Saturday's round of affairs, which includes games with interest for ten teams in both divisions.

The race for leadership in the present campaign has settled on the sturdy shoulders of the representatives of Aberdeen, with Celtic only a step behind.

Saturday's crucial game, will be staged at Pittodrie, where the Dons and Rangers tangle. Both sides fancy their chances.

The Second Division race has also developed into a top-notch battle, with four teams gunning for honors. St. Mirren and Falkirk sent down from the senior league this year, are tied for the leadership, with Morton one step down with two points less and St. Bernard's hanging on to the fourth rung.

CHICAGO PUTS STOP TO WINNING STREAK OF SMYTHE'S CREW

Romnes, McFadyen and Thompson Provide Scoring Punch in Fine Victory—Hainsworth Badly Cut—Amerks Beat Wings in Overtime—Canadiens Defeat Maroons

CHICAGO, Nov. 21 (AP).—Toronto Maple Leafs suffered their first defeat of the National Hockey League season tonight, bowing to the Chicago Black Hawks, 4-3. The result left the Hawks in first place in the American section and the Leafs still ahead in the Canadian. The damage was done by the Hawk line of Doc Romnes, Donnie McFadyen and Paul Thompson, who scored all the Hawk goals. Thompson accounted for two, with McFadyen and Romnes cashing in once each. The Hawks led by 2-1 at the end of the first period, Nick Metz scoring the Leaf goal on an assist from Bill Hollett.

They added two more in the second, while Harvey Jackson was adding another for Toronto, and were held scoreless in the final as Jackson scored the third Leaf goal.

Goalie George Hainsworth, of the Leafs, suffered a long cut over his right eye in stopping a shot by McFadyen in the third period, and had five stitches taken before he could resume. The accident delayed the game thirteen minutes.

AMERKS BEAT WINGS
NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP).—Two brilliant plays, performed in an overtime period by Sweeney Schriner, gave New York Americans a 3-1 victory over Detroit Red Wings tonight. It was the first American victory of the season and Detroit's first defeat after three ties.

After a long session of listless hockey with the score tied, Schriner and Art Chapman got together on a perfect passing play to break the deadlock with less than three minutes of overtime left to play. Schriner passed to Chapman, raced down the centre to take a return pass in front of the goal and slammed it home with a terrific swipe that carried him into the cage behind the disc.

The Wings sent five forwards down the ice in an attempt to tie the count again. Then Schriner beat goalie Norm Smith in a race for a puck that had been batted down the ice and drove it home before the Detroit netminder could get safely back to his position.

The Amerks made the opening score in the first period when Hal Cotton took Joe Jewa's pass and slipped a shot past Smith. Detroit turned on its full power in the second frame to tie it up when Eddie Goodfellow grabbed a rebound in the midst of a melee in front of the net and slipped it into the net.

BEARS, TEXAS ON THE SPOT

California and Texas Christian Facing Strong Grid Foes Tomorrow

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP).—Six of the seven remaining winning streaks in United States major intercollegiate football ranks will be at stake this Saturday on widely-scattered gridirons. The possessor of the seventh, New York University, prudently takes the day off in preparation for a final stand against Fordham on Thanksgiving.

Latest reports indicate California's Golden Bears and Texas Christian's Horned Frogs are being exposed to greater risk than any other inhabitants of the gridiron zoo. The Bears play at Stanford in the West Coast's annual "big game." T.C.U. entertains the Rice Owls, champions of the Southwest in 1934 and beaten only by Southern Methodist this season.

Rice, like Stanford, is in a superb spot to knock off one of the nation's pace-setters.
Texas Christian, like California, has an advantage in the line that may prove decisive, but Rice has a pair of All-American backfield candidates in Bill Wallace and John McCauley, known as the "touch-down twins."

In Texas Southern Methodist comes back home crippled by the loss of Fullback Harry Shuford, to play Baylor's Bears.
Princeton's right to high ranking on the national list will be put to a severe test by another unbeaten and united aggregation, Dartmouth, in the East's outstanding game.

Mount View Wins School Football

Playing in the first game of the Inter-High School Soccer League, Mount View High School eleven eked out a 2-1 victory over Victoria High School on the Fernwood Road grounds, Kennedy's goal from a spot kick, which broke a 1-1 tie, gave the suburban eleven victory.

Tom Smith netted Victoria's lone marker early in the initial stanza. Mount View equalized before the teams reached the breather when Ralph MacDonald scored with a hot drive. Al McKinnon refereed and the teams were:

Mount View—B. Moss; V. Dale and H. Frost; J. Kennedy, R. Munroe and H. Alexander; R. MacDonald, E. Ono, B. Politano, J. Prendergast and V. Broth.

Victoria High School—A. Blake-more; J. Ferguson and J. Joyce; G. Barnes, R. Okell and C. Rowe; A. Williams, J. MacDonald, A. Dallimore, T. Smith and H. Rowe.

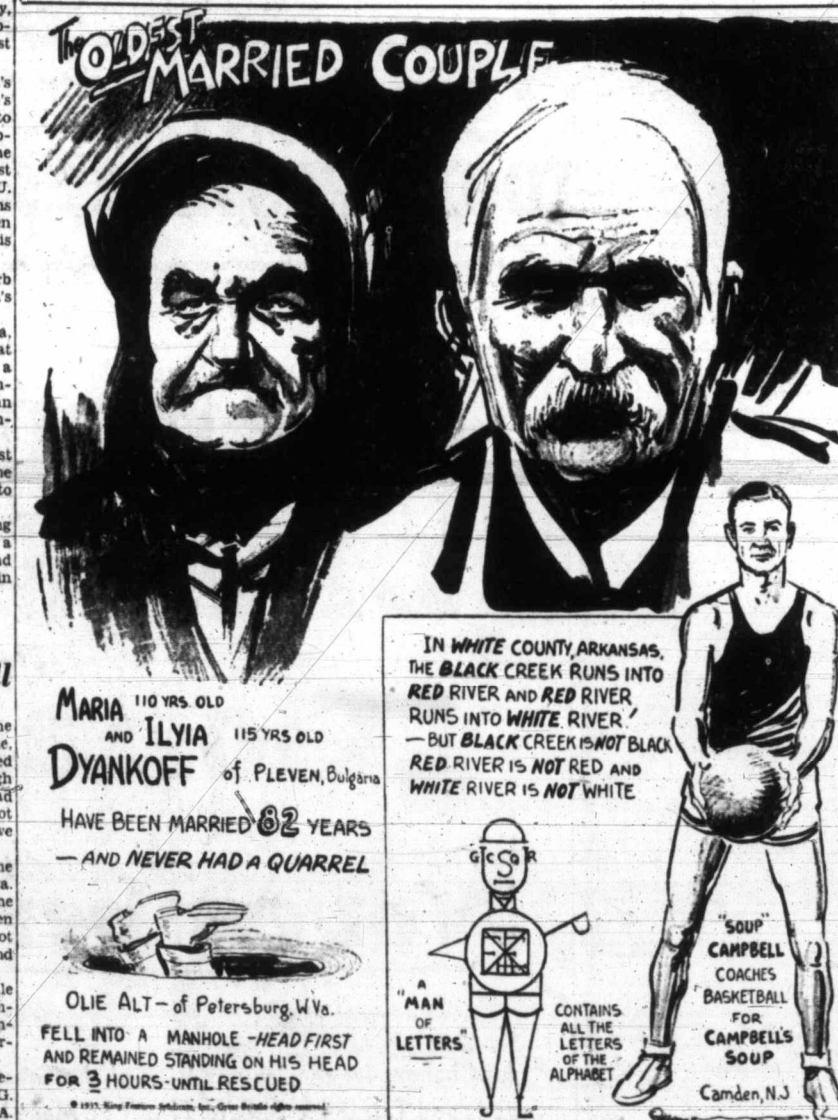

Goes to Americans

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP).—New York Americans, of the National Hockey League, announced the acquisition today of Eddie Wiseman, right wingman of Detroit Red Wings. Wiseman was obtained in exchange for Fred Hergert, a forward on the American's International League farm team in Rochester, and formerly of Calgary, and $7,500 cash.

ROTH WILL MEET KLICK TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP).—Al Roth, sensational young New York lightweight, who gave the old maestro, champion Tony Canzoneri, such a routing time of it a few weeks ago, will meet Frankie Klick, San Francisco veteran, in the ten-round main bout of a lightweight show in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. The winner has been promised a fight with Lou Ambers for the right to challenge Canzoneri.

EXPLANATION FOR TUESDAY'S RIPLEY CARTOON
The Crime of 610—After Mussolini became the head of the Italian Government, the postoffice at Rome was deluged with letters bearing the address of "610 Quirinale Roma." The Quirinale is the residence of the King. The puzzled postoffice authorities finally deciphered the address as "Set Uno Zero," which in Italian means both "You are a cipher" and "Six, One, Nought." Since this contained a reflection on the King's position under Mussolini, the mails were barred to missives so addressed and the addressing of letters in this fashion was made a capital crime in Italy.

Wounded in 1905 by a Revolutionary Bullet—In September, 1905, H. W. Lynn, now of Washington, D.C., was sawing lumber in Flatbush, Long Island, when without warning his circular saw hit a bullet imbedded deep in the log on which he was working. The force and friction of the saw on the old slug heated it as it was torn out of the wood, and it struck Lynn in the chest, inflicting a wound that is still noticeable. Investigation disclosed the bullet to be from a Revolutionary War musket. It had been fired into the sapling during the War, being imbedded deeper as the years went by until fortunate accident in 1905. It was a fortunate accident, because this suggestion from Mr. Lynn won him an all-expense trip to Hollywood and return during the recent "Believe It or Not" contest.

Three Hoop Games Carded Tomorrow At 'Y' Gymnasium

Sunday School Basketball League quintettes will resume their league fixtures tomorrow evening at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium, with three fixtures billed.

The opening game on the programme will bring together Commercial and Christ Church junior squads, with play scheduled to commence at 7 o'clock.

Oak Bay Merchants and Silent Glows, intermediate boys' open teams, will battle in the second tussle, while the Y.M.C.A. and New Method Laundry, intermediate boys' Sunday school quintettes, will clash in the final encounter.

Application of Basketball Turned Down

HALIFAX, Nov. 21 (AP).—Applications of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association and the British Columbia branch to allow blanket traveling permits for Pacific Coast teams were turned down today by the resolutions committee of the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union.

The blanket permits were sought to facilitate and speed arrangement of games between British Columbia and Washington State teams.

Letters to the Editor

CENTRE FORWARD PROBLEM
To the Sporting Editor.
Sir—I beg leave for space in your paper regarding the formation of Victoria United football team. Now, last season the above team won the league championship, and we of Victoria, would certainly like to see it remain here, but that can only be done by making a change in the centre-forward position.

This seems a position calling for chopping and changing every game, thereby spoiling any chance of a lasting combination. May I suggest, as an ardent supporter of the above team, and I think I can speak for many more, that Glancy be given the above position. He is our best bet in Victoria, and not many seasons ago Glancy was Victoria's No. 1 footballer in every respect and without the support he would have today. In my opinion, the forward line of Bell, Stewart, Glancy, Morgan and Payne is second to none in British Columbia, and a combination will develop which will take some stopping.

Trusting this comes under the eye of Victoria United's committee, and that Glancy has his chance in the next game. J. GREEN.

Gorge Vale Will Face Oak Bay in Match on Sunday

Gorge Vale will send their big four to the Oak Bay battleground Sunday to meet Victoria Golf Club's leading shotmakers in a scheduled match in the Victoria District Golf League. Starting off at 9:30, H. H. Allen and Walter Newcombe, Gorge Vale, will meet Jimmy Todd and Goldie Terry, and five minutes later, Frank Thomas and Dick Cox will tee off against Norm Thornton and Art Beasley, Oak Bay's second pair.

Tacoma Football Team Will Play Here Next Week

VICTORIA soccer fans will have a chance of witnessing an American eleven-in action at the Royal Athletic Park next Thursday afternoon when the Tacoma and District Wednesday Football League All-Stars battle Dr. Whetstone's Tacoma squad in an exhibition fixture. Word of the visit of the American eleven was received here yesterday, and officials of the midweek loop are busy preparing plans for the match.

With a number of former Saturday League players now performing in the Wednesday League, the locals will be able to field a strong team against the visitors.

WHOLESALE GRID SUSPENSIONS ARE HANDED OUT

Drastic Action Taken by Ottawa A.A.U. Officials

Hamilton Tigers, Queen's, Ottawa Roughriders, Toronto Argos and Montreal Wheelers Suspended by Amateur Bosses—Union Secretary Says Tomorrow's Games Will Be Played

OTTAWA, Nov. 21.—A knock-out blow to Dominion football play-downs was handed out here today when the Ottawa branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada suspended every man who played in the Inter-Provincial Rugby Union this season and every man who played exhibition games against the Big Four team.

The wholesale suspension, one of the most drastic rulings ever made in Canada, was announced tonight by Gordon Young, secretary of the local branch of the Athletic Union. The ruling knocks out Hamilton Tigers, champions of the Big Four, and Queen's University, who played an exhibition game here against Ottawa Roughriders this season. The two teams were scheduled to meet Saturday in the first round of the play-offs.

The other three teams remaining in the title hunt, Sarnia Imperials, Toronto Balmy Beach and Winnipeg, will not be affected by the ruling.

THROUGH WITH HYPOCRISY
"We are all through with hypocrisy," Young said in explanation of the ruling. He said the local branch knew there was professionalism in the Big Four this season and was determined to stamp it out.

Young said the local branch wished to bring conditions in the Big Four to the attention of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, now in annual session at Halifax. The union will have power to veto or approve the suspensions made here.

Early this week, W. A. Fry, president of the A.A.U. of Canada, suspended all members of the Roughriders squad because he said he had proof that Roy Berry, a star American back, was really John Hillard, formerly of Texas University. He ruled that the suspension would remain in force until the local club cleared itself of suspicion of "ringing" Berry.

Fry asked the local branch to investigate Berry, but neglected to forward his evidence. At the moment, the Berry angle remains unsolved with the Ottawa branch renewing its suggestion to Fry to pass on his evidence.

EVERYBODY SUSPENDED
The suspension applies to every member of Hamilton Tigers, Toronto Argonauts, Montreal Wheelers and Ottawa Roughriders, and all teams playing exhibition games against them this season. In announcing the ruling, Young

Noted Goalie Will Play Tomorrow

LOUIS DE COSTA

BRILLIANT goalkeeper of Esquimalt's first division soccer aggregation and of last season's Victoria United side, who will be making his first appearance of the season in the dockers' net tomorrow afternoon when the squad takes the field against Victoria City at the Royal Athletic Park at 2:30. Manager Jack McCall, in announcing Esquimalt's eleven yesterday, stated that De Costa would be guarding the uprights. It will mark De Costa's first game since he was forced to the sidelines late last season through injuries. Local fans will welcome his return to the game.

With Bell Williams immediately changed tactics, took a drive at the corner of the net, and had scored before Inkster could do more than finger the ball on the way in.

Gibbons and Essler were always safe, their kicking was strong and accurate, but their work was made comparatively easy by the strong covering they received from their halves. Essler is improving, week by week, and is today fifty per cent more valuable than he was a year ago. Did you see Gibbons take a pot at Chalmers? Oh, no, it was quite safe, and a nice pass into the goalie's hands.

After seeing Victoria perform on Saturday, after hearing that the United had it all over the Rangers except for goals the week before, and after reading the table wherein Victoria stands second with five points, it is more than difficult to understand the remarks of a certain well-known scribe of Vancouver who writes a soccer diary.

This particular writer is discussing the general all-round improvement in the game this year. Talking about the Inter-City League, he tells us to ignore Victoria, as Victoria is being ignored! Rightly or wrongly, Victoria won the Inter-City League last year. Victoria helped Nanaimo to represent the West in the Dominion finals last year. Victoria, according to a high authority, was looked upon as the bright spot in B.C. soccer last year.

Victoria is a member of the league and refuses to be ignored. Visiting teams from Nanaimo and from Vancouver always get their guarantee from Victoria, and a little bit overweight. But the thing that galls some Vancouver soccerites is that Victoria can now no longer be counted an easy mark; man for man, our players are just as good as theirs, and fan for fan, we are a more loyal bunch; we demand recognition, and what's more, we earn it.

The V. and D. League, Wednesday League, Juvenile League, Sunday School League, High School League, Saanich League, Oak Bay Schools, Victoria Schools: do you realize that this means well over five hundred playing soccer every week in Greater Victoria? Ignore Victoria!

The showers are coming. The wire netting is up. There will be a grandstand at Macdonald Park. For these our thanks are due to Alderman Worthington and the members of the Parks Board who are doing their best to respond to our daily call for the necessities of life.

We are gratified to hear from his father that Louis De Costa's recovery is practically complete, and that after Christmas we may expect to see him once more between the sticks thrilling the crowd as of yore.

Many weird questions are still being asked about "this new rule" relating to charging the goalkeeper. The rule says, "the goalkeeper shall not be charged unless he is holding the ball, etc." Instructions to referees are: "See that the goalkeeper is not unfairly charged, as he has so little chance of defending himself when his attention is engaged with a coming shot. Instructions to players read, 'So long as a goalkeeper does not hold the ball, or obstruct an opponent, he is protected under the Laws.' Nothing new in all this.

UP-ISLAND GOLF

DUNCAN, Nov. 21.—Miss Deta Peterson was winner of the women's bogey competition at the Cowichan Golf Club yesterday, finishing one down on bogey. Mrs. A. G. Johnston was second, three down. Others competing were: Mrs. C. C. Wright, Mrs. W. Prest, Mrs. F. G. Aldersey, Mrs. J. Longbourne, Mrs. Boyd Wallis, Miss D. Griffiths, Miss G. Beaver and Miss M. Wynne.

HEAVYWEIGHT SQUIRM CARD IS COMPLETE

Strelch Signed for Main Event Tomorrow at Tillicum Gym

With the signing yesterday of Mike Strelch, Yugoslavia, and Glen Stone, Chicago, for the eight-minute-round main event, Promoter Fred Richardson, local wrestling impresario, completed his heavy-weight squirm card for tomorrow evening at the Tillicum gymnasium. "Rocky" Brooks, former Victoria heavyweight, will make his return appearance after an absence of three years, when he climbs over the ropes to match-holds with Baptiste Paul, Victoria Indian, in the five-eight-minute-round semi-windup.

Reg Hopkins and George Lowe, colorful Victoria exponents of the mat game, have been secured for the four five-minute-round special event which opens the card at 8:45 o'clock.

Mike Strelch, good-looking youngster from Belgrade, needs no introduction to local followers of the grappling pastime. He has shown here many times and from the very first grappled his way right into the hearts of the fans. One of the large army of promising young heavyweights, Strelch is good company for any opponent inside the ropes.

Glen Stone, 204-pound Chicago matman, will be making his first appearance in Victoria. Stone has been doing most of his campaigning in the East and has recently arrived on the Coast. Advance reports state that he is a colorful wrestler of the boring-in type, and always craving action.

Considerable interest is being taken in the semi-windup between Brooks and Baptiste Paul. The Indian showed here last week against Wagner and was given a good hand by the fans. Brooks has been wrestling at Vancouver and Seattle and is reported to be a vastly-improved pachyderm. His bout with the Indian should be crammed with action.

Remember When

(Twenty-Five Years Ago)

Cliff Clemenson, the six-foot Washington University first-base man, has signed up with the Victoria Baseball Club for the 1936 season.

The contract, which assures this city of Clemenson's services, was received by Manager Watalett yesterday. It is the first on the list, although Eddie Householder, who is to have the position of club captain of the new professional nine, is busy in the South and further announcements may be looked for shortly. Clemenson is a good man. Victoria is considered lucky in securing him. He played two or three times with Victoria in semi-pro matches last Summer and made a splendid impression.

The Victoria Rugby team has met with uninterrupted success thus far. But it has a troubled path before it.

Next Saturday the locals must go to Vancouver to meet the stalwarts who put up such a cracking good game over a week ago on their own grounds before their own supporters. To make victory sure Victoria will have to be a little stronger and faster than thus far this season. The chances are that it will be. Certainly the Islanders will be in better shape and while it is not always well to do much meddling with men and positions once the season is under way doubtless there will be some alterations which should work an improvement.

The Four Corner-Stone Policy of Canada's Chartered Banks

Protection of Noteholders—Safeguarding the Deposits of the Citizens—Mobilizing Savings for the Encouragement of Agriculture and Industry—Assisting in the Development of External Trade.

CREDIT HAS NOT BEEN RESTRICTED

The Presidential Address of Mr. Jackson Dadds, delivered at the Annual Meeting of the Canadian Bankers' Association:

It is usual for the president in his annual address to discuss the problems of the country, and of business generally during the past year. On this occasion I intend to depart from established custom and confine my remarks to the problems of the banks and their own business in particular. At the outset may be permitted to express our appreciation of the loyalty of our customers during the past six difficult years. Had it not been for their unwavering confidence in the banks, their continued willingness to entrust their savings to us, their determination to turn a deaf ear to unfounded criticism and their opposition to immature and unwise economic proposals, the banks might have been seriously crippled and would now be consequently being helped instead of helping Canada along the road to recovery.

Bankers have maintained traditional silence long enough—too long, say some who have repeatedly urged us to reply to the adverse criticisms which have been current. Unwilling to be accused of "playing politics," we have curbed our impulses to tell what we have done on behalf of our customers.

As many newspaper editorials and letters in the press indicate, Canadians are realizing the unfairness of these attacks. This growing realization of feeling assures me that an effort to answer some of the critics of the policies which the banks have adopted for the protection of the public will be welcomed.

Let me give a bird's-eye picture of the institutions in which depositors have chosen to place their savings. Ten banks operate some 2,924 branches and 608 sub-agencies in Canada, while abroad there are 147 branches and 100 sub-agencies to facilitate Canadian trade. Bank staffs comprise over 25,000 persons, of whom the executive officers, managers and many others are experienced professionals, bankers, fully trained with a view to safeguarding the $2,554 millions of funds of 4,700,000 depositors, and loaning them to some 400,000 reliable borrowing customers, or investing them in the soundest of securities.

The activities of this army of employees, including the senior managerial officers, are constantly under the supervision of some 163 directors—able, sound, successful men of affairs, chosen from and by over 49,500 registered shareholders whose average holdings are but 29 shares. The true average is much smaller, because trust companies and many executors and estate agents each represent a number of parties. These shareholders comprise men and women from every walk of life. These investments, including premiums paid over the years of their stock, and profits deliberately left in the banks over many years to strengthen the institutions, amount to nearly ten per cent of the banks' total assets of $3,036 millions, a substantial contribution of capital. Needless to state, these thousands of shareholders are not concentrated in the financial centres of Canada, but are scattered throughout the country.

HAVE PASSED ACID TEST

Three in the past six years have the banks been put to the acid test—the stock market crash of 1929, the abandonment of gold by Great Britain in 1931, the bank holiday in the United States in 1933. From all these they emerged with public confidence in them unshaken. The proven soundness of the banks under this triple onslaught was of incalculable value to Canada and to all Canadians during these days of stress and strain. The maintenance of the credit of Canada, its provinces, institutions and people during the past six unpropitious years has been aided in large measure by the strength and co-operation of the banks. A recent newspaper editorial, opposing certain proposals to distribute other people's money and credit indiscriminately, bore this heading: "Shall we blow up our rock of Gibraltar? Canadian bankers are grateful for tributes, and with public endorsement of their policies as encouragement they will continue to 'hold the fort'."

In 1933 the Canadian banks came under the keen, critical eye of an eminent British banker, Sir Charles Addey, who, with the other members of the Royal Commission on Banking and Currency in Canada, under the chairmanship of Lord Macmillan, was charged with examining the provisions of the Bank Act and the functions and working of the banking system. After traversing Canada from coast to coast, and taking some 3,500 pages of evidence comprising suggestions for improving the system and some comments of its operation, the banks were called upon to reply. At the close of the final hearing Sir Charles Addey said:

"I am proud of my profession. You have been subjected to a searching questionnaire and you have given us the reply. You have refuted many ill-informed and I may add, in some cases, malicious charges which have been levelled at the banks. You have done so with a dignity, with a moderation, with a frank sincerity which compel conviction. I believe that your document will stand as an historical defence of the Canadian banking system. If this Commission should do nothing more than to elicit this response it would not, in my judgment, altogether have failed in the task allotted to it."

"We are now past the controversial stage. I have no questions to ask, or at least none which can be considered stages in the need for that has gone. Your papers have revealed to us a common aim. We have a common objective—the welfare of the people of Canada."

REVISION OF BANK ACT

Under our Canadian system the charters of the banks have been renewed for periods of ten years only, at the end of which the banks are required to appear before the Banking and Commerce Committee of the House of Commons at Ottawa to discuss any proposed changes in the Bank Act as a condition precedent to the further extension of their charters. Last year I expressed the view that bank charters might well be made permanent, as in Great Britain, France and the United States, subject, however, to review of the Bank Act by Parliament at the end of each ten years, to enable such amendments to be made as experience and new conditions might appear to require. It must not be overlooked that if political exigencies were to prevent the statutory extension of bank charters, the country might be thrown into a state of financial chaos. There is no good reason why this risk should not be removed. From March to the end of June, 1934, the Banking and Commerce Committee of the House of Commons conducted further investigations of many phases of banking in Canada. The general managers of the banks attended week after week and gave evidence when required, covering 350 pages of the 1,000 pages of the record of proceedings of that committee. They leave it to the fair-minded people of Canada whether or not they answered satisfactorily the many and searching questions asked.

CORNER-STONES OF POLICY

The banks of Canada have laid four corner-stones of policy upon which the whole edifice of commercial banking rests.

First—The holders of their notes must be adequately protected. Bank notes are, therefore, a first charge on all banking assets. Note holders may also rely upon the circulation redemption fund, lodged with the Minister of Finance, which must be maintained under any and all circumstances, at 7/8 per cent of the note circulation of the commercial banks.

Second—The banks must safeguard the $2,554 millions belonging to their depositors. Although the banks' legal relationship to depositors is not that of trustee, but of debtor, the banks yield place to none in their sense of responsibility in this respect.

Public confidence in the Canadian banks withstood a severe test when all banks in the United States were closed during the "banking holiday" of March, 1933. Current and savings deposits in Canada remained undisturbed. This bears testimony not only to the soundness of the banks but to the steadfastness of the people of the country.

Third—The mobilized savings of the thrifty are the banks to support and encourage production of all kinds, industry, manufacture and trade, by making sound advances to agriculturists and other producers, manufacturers and business men in Canada; in addition, loans are made to federal, provincial and municipal governments pending collection of taxes or the sale of bonds and debentures.

The maintenance of 3,532 branches and sub-agencies in Canada affords constant evidence of the desire and ability of the banks to provide complete banking facilities in all parts of the country. Branches have been established in pioneer communities to help in the development of the country; where anticipated growth does not take place, operating losses necessitate discontinuance after a fair trial, as a matter of ordinary business procedure.

The total amount of all debit entries passed to individual accounts of all branches in Canada in the month of January last was $3,014 millions, about fifty per cent greater than all bank deposits in Canada, which gives ample conception of the turnover and volume of the banks in Canada.

Fourth—The banks assist in the development of the external trade of Canada, by reciprocal arrangements with correspondent banks throughout the world, and in addition the maintenance of 148 branches and agencies in Great Britain and elsewhere in Europe, the West Indies, the United States of America, and in Central and South America, demonstrate the banks' recognition of policy is an integral part of the banking system.

The foundation on which the banking structure rests is the substantial investment of the shareholders who furnished the capital which enabled the banks to be established. This shareholders' investment of $249.9 millions (at the time of the last annual statements) consisted of paid-up capital, reserve funds and undivided profits. In 1933, according to the report of the Royal Commission on Banking and Currency in Canada, forty-two per cent of these reserves was derived from cash premiums paid by shareholders on capital stock issues, and thirty-four per cent consisted of profits to which the shareholders were entitled over the course of a century and more, but which were left in the banks as a source of additional strength. The remaining twenty-four per cent of these reserves came with the assets of amalgamated banks and represent what their shareholders had contributed or allowed to accumulate.

Bank shareholders receive by way of dividend current rates but 4 1/2 per cent on their total investment, an amount which will be agreed, is moderate in view of the double liability to which they are subjected. Thinking people know what happens when a bank ceases to pay dividends, however small—erstwhile lenders at banking profits are at the head of the line of depositors demanding their money.

NATIONALIZATION FATAL

Perhaps the most insidious of the monetary nostrums recently proposed is the suggestion to nationalize the banks. This scheme is largely based upon the specious theory that the money deposited in the banks is public credit, created by the community at large, on which the shiffling as well as the thrifty should be entitled to draw at will. This is the veriest nonsense. Every sane-minded person realizes that the credit dispensed by the banks is based upon the capital supplied by shareholders, their restricted note issues and their depositors' funds. Members of a community have no right to bank credit merely because they are members of the community. There can be no inherent right to bank credit, for the banks, necessarily responsible to their own creditors, can lend only where they consider repayment well assured; they must refuse to lend in all other cases. The real purpose behind the demand for nationalization of the banks is to get control of the millions placed in the banks of Canada. But the four and a half million depositors will have strong views on that subject.

I need not go fully into the dangers of political management of banking. The dispensation of loans upon the basis of "political" service rendered, modus operandi which would be unavoidable, savors too much of the "pork barrel." Whoever heard of anything being put back into the barrel? The fact that control depositors could have no assurance that their savings would be safeguarded. Indeed, it is a question if there would be any depositors.

Is it any wonder that Lord Snowden (Socialist ex-Chancellor of the Exchequer) said in regard to a similar proposal made in England: "If the banks were nationalized they would have to be managed as they are now if their solvency is to be maintained. This would be impossible under political domination." The recent declaration against bank nationalization by the American Federation of Labor is also significant.

BANKS DO NOT CREATE CREDIT

The noxious theory of nationalization of banking is linked with the equally harmful one that banks create credit by the mere stroke of a pen. The remaining one-quarter of all this is that the banks pay to savings depositors annually millions of dollars in interest in order to attract the wealth to make loans. If they could create credit out of nothing, what enormous dividends they could pay in comparison with their present modest dividends!

What the banks would be doing by telling their depositors to take their savings elsewhere! Then there would be nothing to do but, to all and sundry, to open up a bank, to take in the money, and to divide fat profits among their shareholders—a Utopian absurdity! Despite the misapplication of quotations from history, practice and theory, the banks are competing strenuously for good loans, they cannot scatter advances among all who want money, without regard to merit and history, practice and theory. They refuse to be stampeded into granting credit to persons who, for various reasons are not credit-worthy.

There are centuries of recorded banking history, and the banks are experienced from which to draw, and danger signals are recognized at once by practical bankers. When narrow-minded tales are told of having been denied there is always another side of the story. Public accusations of credit restriction by the banks are usually made in general terms. When the facts are demanded, particulars are generally withheld under one pretext or another. When details are required, the investigation is always made both in the bank's own interest and in the interest of its customer. Despite the care taken in the banks in the training and selection of managers, history, practice and theory, and assistance given to build up their loaning business on which profits depend, an occasional opportunity to make a safe loan might be lost by an inexperienced or lethargic manager. Head offices keep a sharp look out to avoid any such loss of business, knowing that credit-worthy borrowers, if they cannot obtain advances at one bank, promptly apply to another.

CREDIT NOT RESTRICTED

The criticism repeated most often is that the banks have restricted credit during the past six years to the extent of some $500 millions, and that in investing their depositors' funds in Government securities they have improperly withheld the money from business and industry. Let us first rid ourselves of any idea that 1929 is a fair basis of comparison. Apart from call loans (which fluctuate with stock markets), current loans in Canada averaged $1,062 millions during 1923-27, a period of fairly normal years. The average loans for the five years 1930-34 were $1,196 millions, over $100 millions higher than during 1923-27. That is not credit restriction. From a low of $946 millions in January, 1928, these current loans rose to $1,588 millions in October, 1929, an increase of $648 millions in forty-five months. The decline from that high point has been more gradual than the rise, for loans did not recede to $940 millions until July of this year, some sixty-nine months later. Although bank loans are necessarily made for short terms only, it is clear that the banks permitted borrowers to repay these excess loans slowly during a period of five and three-quarter years, over 50 per cent longer than the time of their expansion. As we shall see later, the banks' purchases of securities, instead of representing money improperly withheld from business and industry, largely counteracted this drop in loan volume.

The fact of the matter is that business men, faced with falling prices, reduced their inventories to the minimum, and applied the proceeds to repayment of their bank loans. Moreover, the reduced market prices of wheat, lumber and many other commodities since 1929 have enabled Canadian producers to finance their own expansion on a much smaller scale. The fall of 30 per cent in wholesale prices affords a further clear illustration of this. In England and other countries the lack of growth of bank loans, despite evidence of recovery and increased production, is due to the fact that borrowing in those countries during depressions, has lagged far behind recovery. As confidence is restored and opportunities for profitable employment for money are found, prospective borrowers naturally turn to their own accumulated funds first, hence the time lag in the growth of bank loans.

The banks have been blamed for their large purchases of Government securities, but the critics fail to realize that every bond purchased meant a corresponding credit to the issuing Government or to the seller from whom it was acquired. Between the end of 1929 and the close of September last, the banks increased their investment portfolio from $448 millions to $1,103 millions, placing some $655 millions at the complete disposal of the vendors of those securities. The only alternative for the banks would have been to hold the cash in their vaults. This increase in security holdings is a far greater than the decrease in loans of which complaint has been made.

SOUND BORROWERS SOUGHT

No Canadian bank, whilst paying 2 per cent interest on savings deposits, would turn down or refuse good, commercial or industrial borrowers bearing up to 7 per cent in order to hold excess cash yielding nothing, or to put the money into Government bonds, or other short-term obligations yielding from, say, 1.30 per cent to 2 per cent, or long term bonds yielding from 3 to 4 per cent. The banks, in addition to savings interest, must pay operating costs, taxes, etc., at several thousand branches and cannot afford to be content with low yields. The banks are competing strenuously for good loans, they cannot scatter advances among all who want money, without regard to merit and history, practice and theory. They refuse to be stampeded into granting credit to persons who, for various reasons are not credit-worthy.

BANKS HAVE DONE PART

Perhaps I have spoken over-long, but I desired to touch upon some of the more important misapprehensions concerning banking. I have not attempted to cover the whole subject by any means, but have endeavored at least to indicate that there is another side to the story which the public would like to hear. I do not wish, however, to leave the impression that banks are all-wise, that they are run by super-men who never make a mistake. Bank employees are human, and with 25,000 of them engaged in carrying on the operations of the banks in Canada, errors are inevitable, notwithstanding intensive training and every safeguard thus far conceived. It is axiomatic that human beings, when their customers prosper, so that our wishes for the return for better times to business are not entirely unselfish. Properly wishing and the banks know, this is a degree of inertia to be overcome. There are many people who feel that governments should legislate property into being, others advance equally fantastic proposals of their own invention, whilst still others applaud destructive criticism of anything savouring of success and constructive attempts to revive confidence, which has been badly battered by these onslaughts.

May I conclude by saying that this is a time when dreaming and cloud-throwing should cease and all red-blooded Canadians should put their shoulders to the wheel. Only thus did the pioneers overcome obstacles and create the Canada in which we live, and only thus can we prove ourselves worthy of our heritage.

NOTE CIRCULATION

It has been asserted that the banks are responsible for a decrease of $100,000,000 in the note circulation since 1929. A glance at the facts will reveal the error of this statement. The mere comparison of the total issues of Dominion and Bank of Canada notes will not tell the story, for the bulk of these has been held by the banks and only a small amount by the public. The total issue of the Dominion and Bank of Canada notes, Dominion notes and Bank of Canada notes, excluding notes held by the banks, is the only basis for a correct comparison of note circulation.

In January, 1929, the total notes of all kinds circulating among the public amounted to $173,000,000; in September last the figure was $174,000,000. The largest circulation in 1929 was $205,000,000. The maximum fluctuation in that year was $22,000,000, in other years it has been more or less for the elasticity of Canadian note circulation is such that it expands and contracts readily and in accordance with the requirements of trade and economic activity.

Even if there were, the banks would not be responsible for it, for it is to their interest to maintain their note circulation at the maximum. As stated in the Macmillan Report (Canadian), it was then estimated that banks made a net profit of 50 per cent on average circulation; the rate would be lower today, but it still affords a sufficient incentive to maintain the largest possible note distribution within the present statutory limit, namely, the amount of a bank's paid-up capital.

INFLATION IS DANGEROUS

The claim of reduced note circulation was evidently introduced as the basis for a proposal to inflate the paper note issues of Canada. At the banks resolutely oppose, although it might well be argued that they would gain by it. They could repay deposits in depreciated currency, increased prices of securities and goods pledged against loans now insufficiently margined would enable such borrowers to repay their loans. But in the end there is always an end to inflation—there would be a day of reckoning when the banks and everyone else would be involved in loss.

Inflation increases living costs, and higher prices always precede increased wages and salaries. All those who are employed in the country, with the consequent suffering to all persons dependent upon fixed incomes. Privation becomes universal. It is significant that those countries which experienced the worst suffering from post-war currency inflation are now making a valiant fight to maintain a gold standard.

BANKING PROFITS

It is frequently alleged that the banks make a cheap profit of the difference between their lending rates and the rate of interest paid to depositors. Two per cent from seven per cent, it is said, leaves a usual profit of five per cent. But it is not as simple as all that, as perusal of the monthly statements of the banks will show. The average interest on deposits with the Bank of Canada, present (30th September, 1935), some eight per cent of public liabilities is maintained as cash reserves or deposits with the Bank of Canada. None of the earnings may interest.

Other items of a cash nature amounting to a little over ten per cent of such liabilities also earn no interest. Close to twenty-one per cent of public liabilities is represented by other quick assets or liquid reserves, the characters of which are comprised of Government treasury bills and bonds maturing in less than two years, the average yield, at present market price, being below two per cent. The remaining one-quarter represented by call loans in Canada and reserves necessarily kept abroad, yields at present an average of about three per cent. The neighbourhood of four per cent is invested in Government, municipal and other sound securities, yielding, at present market price, a little over three per cent. About forty per cent of public liabilities is represented by loans to governments, municipalities, commerce, industry, production and agriculture, at rates which naturally vary according to the quality of the advance.

From the foregoing, it will be clear that after paying the savings depositors two per cent interest, and meeting the entire expenses of operation, including the costs of many services, the banks are left with an increasing burden of federal, provincial and municipal taxation, and after making provision for bad debts, there remains out of gross earnings but a scanty surplus from which dividends to shareholders can be paid. It will be realized from these figures that the banks, like business generally, are feeling the pinch of reduced earnings, and it will undoubtedly be necessary in future to make charges for many services which in the past have been given free or for less than cost.

The present campaign by governments, municipalities, and, indeed, by almost all borrowers for lower and lower interest rates has had drastic effects upon the income of all who derive their revenues from loans and securities. Clearly there is a point beyond which such interest rates should not be allowed to go. A cut of 1 per cent in the rate of interest on the $1,040 millions of current loans in Canada would reduce bank gross earnings by $10 millions and would entail a further reduction in interest paid to over four and a half million depositors, if present modest dividends are to be maintained. If dividends disappear the banks would speedily lose the public confidence so essential to the maintenance of the financial strength of Canada and would be seriously impaired.

BANKS HAVE DONE PART

Perhaps I have spoken over-long, but I desired to touch upon some of the more important misapprehensions concerning banking. I have not attempted to cover the whole subject by any means, but have endeavored at least to indicate that there is another side to the story which the public would like to hear. I do not wish, however, to leave the impression that banks are all-wise, that they are run by super-men who never make a mistake. Bank employees are human, and with 25,000 of them engaged in carrying on the operations of the banks in Canada, errors are inevitable, notwithstanding intensive training and every safeguard thus far conceived. It is axiomatic that human beings, when their customers prosper, so that our wishes for the return for better times to business are not entirely unselfish. Properly wishing and the banks know, this is a degree of inertia to be overcome. There are many people who feel that governments should legislate property into being, others advance equally fantastic proposals of their own invention, whilst still others applaud destructive criticism of anything savouring of success and constructive attempts to revive confidence, which has been badly battered by these onslaughts.

May I conclude by saying that this is a time when dreaming and cloud-throwing should cease and all red-blooded Canadians should put their shoulders to the wheel. Only thus did the pioneers overcome obstacles and create the Canada in which we live, and only thus can we prove ourselves worthy of our heritage.

HIGHWAY BOARD ONCE PLEDGED

Government Silent on Move By Island Cities for Reconsideration

Provincial Government circles were silent yesterday on the bid by Island mayors and Reeves for establishment by the Province of an independent highway commission, a pre-election plank in the Government's platform.

Premier Pattullo, who acts as spokesman for the Cabinet on matters of policy, was out of the city for the day. Hon. P. MacPherson, Minister of Public Works in charge of the road programmes of the Province, said he had no comment to make on the issue at this time.

MORE THAN ONE ATTEMPT

Back of official reticence is the record of more than one attempt both in the Legislature and out of it, to bring about the formation of an independent highway commission.

More than one member of the caucus made use of the plank in the party's platform before the Provincial election, and the Minister of Works was outspoken on the point at one time.

Tangible moves to bring a highway board policy before the House, however, failed in the last two sessions.

HAD TWO PROGRAMMES

This year the Government handled its special road programme by contract, awarding contracts to private contractors in five zones created in the Province. Maintenance and ordinary road work were carried out as usual under supervision of departmental engineers in each riding.

Approximately $1,400,000 was set aside this year for the normal road and bridge votes, exclusive of $1,500,000 in the special emergency work programme. Both comprised works carried out, to a greater or less extent, in all ridings; the special programme being divided among sixty sections of Provincial highways, and the normal programme into customary electoral zones.

LADYSMITH SELLS CITY PROPERTIES

Reverted Buildings Disposed of Cheaply for Use in New Structures

LADYSMITH, Nov. 21.—A brief session by the City Council last evening disposed of routine business in short order. Dilapidated properties which have reverted to the city continue as a problem for discussion, and two such buildings were sold for a total of $15 to a bidder who announced his intention of employing the salvaged material as part of a thousand-dollar home he intends to erect soon upon another lot. These buildings are practically beyond any hope of rehabilitation except at heavy cost, and conditional to the bidder proceeding with his plans, the offer was accepted.

Another city property in good condition was sold for $150. The chairman of the board of works, Alderman Steele, reported that work on fencing the Abbotsford Hotel was proceeding, and he recommended that the council permit him to have some outbuildings in connection with the large hotel condemned and destroyed. He reported further that the interior of the building had been gutted of all doors and transoms before it reverted to the city. The Abbotsford Hotel was at one time a flourishing hotel in Old Wellington, and was moved in parts and reassembled in Ladysmith in the early years of the century, where its unique and picturesque architecture still make appeal as one of the outstanding buildings in the district. Permission was granted to have the recommendation placed in effect.

FOR PLAYGROUNDS

The board of school trustees asked the council to endorse a proposal that a new area of 48,000 square feet be added to the present limits of the Central School playing grounds. The council approves the plan, but will ask that actual work of clearing and enclosing be delayed until all angles of the situation are thoroughly clarified. It is anticipated that actual work will commence early in the year. A disused street will be enclosed in the new grounds, but arrangements will be made to permit pedestrian traffic at that point between Third and Fourth Avenues.

The Native Sons and Native Daughters of B.C. Post No. 7, are ready to proceed with extensive additions to their headquarters on First Avenue, after some weeks' preparation, and permission was sought from the council to begin the work. A new kitchen and large dining-hall will be added to the present premises. The necessary permit was granted.

The civic voters' list will be revised on December 10, and Aldermen Joyce and Steel were appointed by Mayor Walkem to officiate at the Court of Revision.

TRY TO ORGANIZE WELFARE WORK

LADYSMITH, Nov. 21.—Efforts to convene a public meeting to discuss plans for consolidating welfare work in the city, failed to enlist a large attendance on Tuesday evening.

Another meeting will be called for next Tuesday, when it is hoped that local organizations will be represented to aid in the efforts by the City Council to have local charity work placed on a systematic basis, by eliminating overlaps and duplication in rendering assistance to the needy.

SPIN CHUTES

OCCASIONALLY, NEWLY DESIGNED AIRPLANES, ON TEST FLIGHTS, GET INTO UNCONTROLLABLE "FLAT SPINS" FROM WHICH THE PILOT CANNOT RECOVER.

ONCE IN THE FLAT SPIN THE UNCONTROLLABLE AIRPLANE WHIRLS AROUND, ON LEVEL KEEL, VERY MUCH LIKE A SPINNING, FALLING CARD AND THE PILOT'S ONLY RECOURSE IS TO JUMP.

TO STOP THE FLAT SPIN A SMALL PARACHUTE, PACKED IN THE BACK OF THE FUSELAGE, IS OPENED. ONCE THE SPIN IS STOPPED, THE CHUTE IS CUT LOOSE, AND THE PLANE LANDS.

1935, McNaught Syndicate, Inc., N. Y. 11-10

The flat spin is not to be confused with the normal spin. The latter is a standard bit of acrobatics and every student should be taught how to get into and out of the spin before he or she is permitted to go up alone.

The flat spin is a far more serious manoeuvre. Normal airplanes may not be flat spun accidentally or intentionally. In the normal spin, the airplane is pointed earthward at an angle of about 45 degrees and seems to be spinning about a point fifty feet in front of itself. In the flat spin, the airplane whirls about on more or less even keel and seems to spin about an axis within itself. The air thus flows across the tail surfaces instead of along their length, hence no effect may be obtained by pulling the elevators up or down, an operation which normally makes the plane climb or dive.

The rotation of the plane must be stopped before control can be regained. The normal rudder is insufficient in size to stop this mad whirl, and designers have hit on the very simple idea of a small parachute, carried packed in the back of the fuselage, which may be opened so as to stop the rotation of the spinning airplane. It may then be brought safely to earth and a cure for its flat spinning characteristics applied.

TRUDGE. "Over the hill poor-house I'm trudging my way," wrote Will Carleton, in a poem that never fails to tug at the heart.

Every word in this line makes for a passage that pulls the strings of pity and sympathy, striking ever echoing chords in the human breast.

Particularly apropos is "trudge," with its implication of a labored walk, a tired march, the forced, dragging, pace of fatigue and the end of endurance.

"Trudge" deserves and has an interesting story. It is rooted in the Scandinavian and originally meant to "walk on snowshoes." The Swedish word for snowshoes is "truga."

LIBRARY TO BE VISITED

Members of Council Invited To Inspect Institution During Carnegie Week

As part of the programme to mark the centenary of Andrew Carnegie's birth, the Victoria Public Library, founded by the great benefactor, has invited the Mayor and members of the City Council to inspect the library early next week.

As the centenary of Carnegie approaches, the many benefactions of this great philanthropist are called to mind, and the directors and the staff of the Victoria Public Library are preparing for the observance of the centenary by bringing to the public the value derived from Carnegie's endowments.

The first library was established in this city in 1862 as the Mechanics' Institute Free Library. This was taken over by the city in 1888, and located in the City Hall.

In 1902, Mr. Carnegie was asked for a grant, and the benefactor donated the sum of $55,000 to the city for the erection of a building and providing of equipment. The conditions of the grant were that the library was to be free to the people of Victoria, and that not less than $5,000, or ten per cent of the gift was to be spent on maintaining the library.

MINIMUM INADEQUATE

The absurdity of the last condition has been proved again and again in Canada and the United States where the minimum has been found impracticable to maintain the libraries on a proper basis.

The cornerstone, bearing Andrew Carnegie's name, was laid in 1904, and the library opened in 1905. From 1905 to 1911, the institution had only one or two persons on the staff, and the daily average circulation was only one hundred books.

In 1911, Miss Helen G. Stewart was appointed assistant, and in 1912 became librarian in charge. She reorganized the library along modern lines, instituting the open-shelf system; establishing a separate children's department with specially trained persons in charge; a complete new catalogue, and a reference department.

OTHER IMPROVEMENTS

Upon the departure of Miss Stewart to another field of library activity, Miss Margaret Clay was elevated to the post of city librarian, and under her supervision, the reference department had been built up and a department of music established.

Compared with an average circulation of one hundred books a day in 1906, the library now loans books to 17,690 persons. From a library, which at its inception was essentially one of entertainment, it has grown to one that plays an important role in adult education.

On November 25, the citizens of Victoria will observe the 100th anniversary of Andrew Carnegie's birth, and at the same time pay tribute to his public service.

TOBACCO OFFICIALS VISITING VICTORIA ON INSPECTION TRIP

On a tour of inspection, Earle Spafford, Montreal, vice-president and director of the Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, and C. H. Scheler, Hamilton, president of Tuckett's Tobacco, Limited, arrived in Victoria yesterday, and registered at the Empress Hotel.

Although Mr. Spafford declined to give interviews, he did remark that business generally appeared to be much better, and the people of the West were optimistic over trade developments expected from the recent reciprocal trade pact between Canada and the United States.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

RAISING PARTNER'S SUIT BID

As soon as a player has thoroughly digested opening suit bid requirements, and how to choose between biddable suits (as explained in my recent article), he is ready to "tackle" a more difficult phase of bidding: When to raise partner's suit bid.

In principle, raises are based on the number of supporting winners in the responding hand. (The player who makes the first bid is called the opening bidder; his partner is the responder, or responding hand.)

In practice, however, it is easier and simpler to base raises on case methods, which involve three separate factors:

1. Adequate trump support.
2. Honor tricks.
3. Short suits.

Before discussing these factors individually let me emphasize that, in speaking of "raising partner's suit bid," I am using the term literally and am not yet taking up the various other bids that responding hand can make.

No matter how strong the responding hand is, no raise should be given without adequate trump support. Partner's opening bid may be based on a minimum four-card suit. To support, or raise him, you must have at least four small cards in his suit, or the queen and two small ones.

You may give your partner one raise—that is, from one to two of his suit—if holding adequate trump support and one honor trick if your hand contains a singleton; one and a half honor tricks if your hand contains a doubleton; two honor tricks even if you have no short suit (4-3-3-3).

BLIND SPOT

Today's hand offers a striking illustration of a defender's "blind spot."

The bidding:

South West North East
1 NT Pass 3 NT (final bid)
West opened the spade king.

The declarer held off the first two rounds of spades, winning the third with his ace and discarding a heart from dummy. He then played the ace and king of clubs from his own hand and then the ace and king of diamonds from dummy. A third round of diamonds was won by East's queen, and it was at this point that the crucial play was involved.

East knew, by simple arithmetic, that his partner could have only one more spade. Also that he was out of diamonds, and, probably, of clubs as well, since the declarer had clearly kept dummy's club queen for an entry. East-West needed two more tricks to defeat the contract. Yet East carelessly led the spade and poor West was forced to give declarer two heart tricks for his contract. Either a heart or a club led by East would have assured the defenders five tricks.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Question—My bid was two spades. The opponents revoked, which gave me four spades. Is that a game?

Answer—No. Below the line you get only the amount of your contract. Any overtricks, even if they become yours on an opponent's revoke, are scored above the line.
